Depopulation Through Forced Vaccination: The Zero Carbon Solution!

On April 26th, the Irish Independent published an article titled 'Concern for Children's Health as Parents ignore vaccines'. Edel Kennedy, you should be ashamed of yourself! This is nothing less than an attempt by government, through their puppets in the media, to remove the rights of parents to determine the life choices of their offspring and remove any doubt that we now live in a dictatorship.

This is an OUTRAGEOUS insult to every parent in the country who has the common sense to research the efficacy of vaccines themselves by simply looking at the historical record rather than trust politicians whose lies are in the media, including those perpetrated by the Dept. of Health under Mary Harney regarding the force of 'swine flu' and the dangerous myth of HPV vaccination, have led the country into the abyss of utter poverty and sold the country into the clutches of European bureaucrats whose sole aim is the destruction of every member nation's sovereignty leaving them clutching at the bailout begging bowl of the IMF.

Vaccines are a fraud, pure and simple! The historical record PROVES this for anyone with a little patience and the courage to investigate the FACTS for themselves, and it does take courage, especially for those in the medical profession whose careers will be at risk if they dare expose this danger to our children. It also shatters their illusions that they're part of an organisation which is far from beneficial to those they believe they're protecting from illness.

However, their hypocritical oath should compel them to investigate such wild claims put out by pharmaceutical giants and their drug dealer sales representatives instead of taking the word of an industry well known as being utterly corrupt and ruthless in its business practices.

The Irish haemophiliacs scandal, where patients were knowingly infected with HIV through contaminated blood products should be enough to convince anyone of Big Pharma's murderous intent.

This brings us to the real reasons for vaccination. I'm not even going to try to prove to readers that they don't work. I'll simply urge you to look up the historical record. One simple example is the demise of measles.

Measles death rate had declined by 80% from 1915-1958 prior to any vaccination being introduced. In 1988 and 1989, 69% and 89% for measles cases in American school-aged children had been vaccinated! In 1995 56% of ALL measles cases in America were vaccinated.

These figures come from medical journals.

Those 3 simple examples PROVE that unvaccinated children are less likely to contract measles.

Scotland's Shame - The Hollie Greig Scandal

By Robert Green

Although it is now over two years since I became involved in the Hollie Greig story and it is eleven years since Hollie first brought her dramatic revelations to the attention of the authorities in Aberdeen, I have good reason to believe progress is being made on many fronts, both in Scotland and England.

In Scotland, it has been well established that the state has already accepted that Hollie was the victim of systematic sexual abuse from the age of six, by granting her £13,500 from the Criminal Injustice Compensation Authority for her suffering. The principal document that influenced this award was the professional analysis written by the eminent psychologist, Dr. Eva Harding, who not only specifically identified and confirmed two of the abusers as being responsible, but also added in her conclusion that "Hollie had probably also been abused by others who had access to her". Hollie has repeatedly named all of those individuals and seven other victims whose ordeal she witnessed. Apart from a cursory interview with the initial abuser in 2000 and the second confirmed abuser two years later, absolutely no effort has been made by Grampian Police to investigate the crimes in any meaningful way.

Not only was Dr. Eva Harding's report available to the police, but also that of another highly respected psychologist, Dr. Jack Boyle, who also concluded that there was no doubt that Hollie had been sexually violated.

In 2006, a Police Complaints Commission Inquiry was set up to investigate the Grampian Police’s conduct in investigating this matter along with related alleged crimes concerning the snatch and kidnapping of Anne Greig, Hollie's mother, on 5th September 2000, just a few days after Hollie had named her high-profile abusers, as well as the death of key witness Robert David Greig on 17th November 1997 in the most suspicious of circumstances.

No worthwhile attempts were ever made to investigate these alleged crimes and it is perfectly obvious that the various authorities already had no agenda to ensure the true facts should never come to light.

After the inquiry was completed, sadly though predictably one that left more questions than answers, it transpired that both the documents supporting Hollie by Dr. Harding and Dr. Boyle were withheld from the inquiry. Although it was not known to the Greig at the time, two other vital documents that were in the police's possession were also crucially concealed. These were part of Hollie's medical records, which were not released to Anne until October 2009. Both were written by the medical officer for Hollie's special school, Dr. Paul Cartter.

The first, dated 1990, described Hollie, then aged 10, as suffering from a sexually transmitted disease. The second, dated 1992, described staff concern at Hollie's behaviour, which was regarded as a clear indication that a child of her condition had experienced sexual activity. These vital documents were never acted on by the school's head, one of the named abusers, nor the GP. Anne was never told and when she did take Hollie to the same GP over her concerns about symptoms in the lower part of her body, the GP told her it was 'just to do with Hollie's general medical condition'. None of these three medical experts have ever been interviewed by the police.

All of the authorities, including the Chief Constable of Grampian Police, Colin MacKennah and leading politicians in Scotland, as well as some in England, have been made aware of this dreadful scandal for some time. It is in the credit of one English MP, Mr. David Ruffley, for showing the moral courage so many of his colleagues lack by directly challenging Scottish Ministers over their treatment of the issues, which he rightly describes as "appalling".

I have recently made a formal criminal complaint to the police about Mrs. Elish Angiolini, the disgraced Lord Advocate who has been forced to resign on 5th May. We have compelling documentary evidence to prove that she publicly lied about her role in the case in 2006, where she clearly used her influence to pervert the course of justice. The same can be said of her role in the second investigation in late 2009. In the case of the latter, she has even embezzled public funds for her own personal use in threatening legal action against all major organs of the media, effectively gagging them from publishing the letters proving her involvement in 2000. These funds were effectively stolen from the very people who had a right to know of the true facts about Mrs. Angiolini’s misconduct.

It is impossible to describe everything that is going on, including the continued efforts to silence and intimidate me and my clients both in Scotland and in England. In Shropshire, where Hollie and Anne now live, Shropshire Council Social Services ordered a raid, accompanied by theft and vandalism on the ladies’ home on 3rd June 2010. As a result of pressure by many interested parties, the Freedom of Information Commissioner has confirmed after a thorough investigation, that not only had the council broken the law, but also that two senior managers, Tom Collard and Stephen Chandler, had repeatedly lied when questioned about the raid.

There is much, much more and let us hope that not only for the sake of the victims of historic abuse, but also those children and the disabled in Aberdeen who remain at the mercy of the paedophile ring, that firm action is taken without further delay. Senior Scottish Ministers Kenny MacAskill and Alex Salmond have been made fully aware of the background to this case since the summer of 2009, when I also sent them the documents exposing Elish Angiolini’s lies and culpability.

The Hollie
The Government has promised to put a Referendum on Children's Rights to the people later this year to amend the Constitution in order to give the State increased power over our children. To this end, it is proposed that the existing Article 42.5 be deleted and Article 42.4 be inserted into the existing Article 42. It is also proposed that a new provision be inserted into Article 45 of the Constitution. Mothers Alliance Ireland has looked at the proposal and we give hereunder our opinion. (all emphasis ours)

While the new Article 42.5 is fraught with danger, rights granted in Article 42.4 appear to be the Devil's ploy of all. If this amendment is passed, every other Article in the Constitution, including Articles 41 (Family) and 42 (Education), can become redundant, because the introduction to Article 45 states:

“The principles of social policy set forth in this article are intended for the general guidance of the Oireachtas. The application of those principles in the making of laws shall be the care of the Oireachtas and not that of any Court under any of the provisions of this Constitution.”

If this Referendum is passed, then safeguarding the rights and interests of children will, under the Articles 42 (A) & 42 (C) our Court workers, not rights of the Oireachtas governments exclusively. The rights of parents are not to be considered. This is as dangerous as it is bizarre because the only justification for many children having the authority of their parents to seek redress for them, sometimes in the Courts, on the very constitutional grounds our politicians now want to eliminate.

No doubt our politicians will claim that the purpose of this new Article 42.5 is to satisfy Ireland’s obligation under Article 2 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC). The Irish Government ratified the CRC in 1992, without any consultation with the people of Ireland. Article 2 of the CRC reads as follows:

Article 2 (1) States Parties (Ireland) shall respect and ensure the rights set forth in the present Convention to each child within their jurisdiction without any discrimination on the ground of the sex, race, colour, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, disability, birth or other status.

(2) States Parties (Ireland) shall take all appropriate measures to ensure that the child is protected against all forms of discrimination or any other degrading treatment or any other form of ill-treatment prohibited under international law. This protection is to be extended to the child by the courts.

Article 43 of the same Convention makes it clear that States that ratify this Convention do not answer to parents. Rather they are accountable to and must comply with the demands of an uneducated, unaccountable UN Committee, the members of which are drawn from all over the world and whose culture and values will more than likely be foreign to Irish parents.

If this referendum is passed, it is the State and state bodies like the HSE, ISPCC, the Children’s Rights Alliance (CRA) and social workers, not parents, that will decide what is in the best interests of every child in the State, irrespective of the material status of the family and the family’s ability to buy. The UN Committee will adjudicate on what the State decides.

The State and state bodies have a rather murky record in safeguarding the nation’s children. The past. Where, for instance was the ISPCC throughout the darkest period in Irish history when the state-sponsored industrial schools and children’s homes were taking place? Almost 40% of the children consigned to the Industrial Schools were there as a direct result of the ISPCC. It was the ISPCC that was primarily responsible for putting them there as revealed by that extraordinary gentleman Michael O’Brien, victim of horrific

PROPOSED WORDING FOR AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION. (all emphasis ours)

Article 42.5 of the Constitution is deleted.

A new article 42 (A) inserted after existing Article 42

42(A) 1 The State acknowledges and affirms the natural and imprescriptible rights of all children and guarantees, as far as is practicable, by its laws to protect and vindicate those rights.

42(A).2 In exceptional cases, where the parents of any child regardless of their marital status for physical or moral reasons fail in their responsibility towards such child, the State as guardian of the common good, shall, by appropriate means as provided by law, endeavour with due regard for the natural and imprescriptible rights of the child, to supply the place of the parents.

42(A).3 Provision may be made by law for the voluntary placement for adoption and the adoption of any child.

42(A).4 Provision may be made by law for securing, as far as is practicable, the welfare and best interests of the child in the resolution of all proceedings concerning the adoption, guardianship or custodial rights or any other cause, to any child, and in all such proceedings concerning a child who is capable of forming his or her own views, the voice of the child shall be heard and due weight having regard to the child’s age and maturity.

The following provisions to be inserted into Article 45. Directive Principles of Social Policy

The State acknowledges that children, by reason of their physical and mental immaturity, need special safeguards and care, including appropriate legal protection, and pledges itself to safeguard with special care the rights and interests of children.

The proposed wording above is not as bad as it was, but is still seriously lacking. Of course, the bottom line about real rights is that money has to be spent to uphold them. Elastic v. Watson, like “as far as is practicable,” in the proposed new Article 42 (A), should therefore set alarm bells ringing, especially for parents of children with disabilities and those with special needs. "As far as is practicable" is not a guarantee of a right but its exact opposite. Effectively what is implied here is that these rights will be guaranteed only as long as there is sufficient funding available to uphold them. Even in times of plenty, this phrase was used in many areas of social and health policy to avoid spending money. If this referendum is passed, it will be the children’s special needs with their members are growing - who will be the first to lose. It is a step back in any further economic downturn and the government is indeed is happening in this present recession in health and education. The highly paid top brass in the ISPCC and other State funded children’s rights groups will, no doubt, hold on to their well-paid taxpayer funded jobs.

This proposed amendment is clearly not in the best interests of one single Irish child, and if people truly want what’s best for our children, now and into the future, they will give it a resounding NO on referendum day.

Ireland has as much of oil as Norway

By Lyndon L. LaRouche, Jr.

In that account, conserve the progressive power of the Polish-Lithuanian Western solution to the problem that today's insight into the special affronts of oil nationalism in the folks to what was to emerge as the United States, own much to my friend: the historian H. Graham Lowry, whose 1984 ‘How The Nation Was Won’ professed a deeper insight into both of their respective nations presently.

Graham's achievement as a scholar has pinpointed the direct connection to the great Gerhard Lehmbach to what would emerge as the United States of America. Graham's discovery located the precise connection in Gerhard Lehmbach's imagination, in the context of the eighteenth century, into the resistance to the subjugation of both Ireland and the Massachusetts Bay Colony led by the Winthrop and Mather's. He brought our attention to the remarkable role of Jonathan Swift in leading a continuing resistance to the ideas of that William Penn, who was the actual founder of the British Empire as an attempt to replicate the Roman empire before it

The present trans-Atlantic community is in a state of an apparently current substitution to such traditionalist imperialism, usually implied by the recent American imperial ascendancy, as early commented by Queen Elizabeth II, and also of the United States under hardly arguable U.S. Presidents such as George W. Bush, and, even worse, President Barack Obama. Despite all that, there exists a certain, inherently obvious resistance to that from the presently defeated opponents, as among the Irish who once our determination to fire us from that imperialist evil flowing throughout the New American Party's William of Orange. So in just all warfare against the power of evil, a sense of the immensity which is specific to the human spirit is still

But behind the troubles we had already shared among us, there is both the ominous threat of the greatest economic collapse in modern history, and additional great troubles introduced by a menacing turn in our Solar System's currently increasing vulnerability to a mix of bad weather, including such troubles as a solar excursions on the scale of “8” and above, and an addition of very nasty weather in our match.

To add to those troubles we have already known all too well, a new peril exists for the community. We have the will of resisting the effects of the changes that could threaten our ability to save lives, if we will, and the potential, if we determined to do so, to bring some effective control over the presently menacing global developments as it has been a way of turning the subjugation of the Roman empire.

Here we all, in these most worthwhile endeavours. Consider the evidence which Graham Lowry's work has already greatly improved our insights into the foundations on which our policy-making for today and the years to come depend in great

- A Matter of Economic Principle

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the trans-Atlantic region (and beyond), European civilization since the Middle Ages has been ruled from the founding of the Roman Empire in the eastward movement of our mass through this, we have the ability of us to save lives, if we will, and the potential, if we determined to do so, to bring some effective control over the presently menacing global developments. As the principal crisis of the planet's future is within the American System, the long-term implications of which are not only obvious, but already a real danger to the present system.

The objective which we must keep in mind in working to defeat the terminal moment of a collapse of the “Euro” system, is the need for a new American system that will provide for the American people of which the trans-Atlantic region, a new and better, and an end to the present system's dominance of the world economy. It must be noted that the trans-Atlantic region, including the European Union, have been plunged, presently, into the breakdown crisis now centered in that great reign of madness called “The Euro.”

The principal currency bloc of the planet, that largely, is in an advanced expression of something like what was imposed on Germany in 1933. It now appears that those events of 1933 are now being re-enacted on a trans-Atlantic, or even greater scale. From this perspective, the potential of a collapse of the American System, unless the suicidal folly of the present “Euro” system is altered, and that, we now seem, for the benefit of a system of respectively

10 Facts That Prove the Bin Laden Fable Is a Contrived Hoax

By Paul Joseph Watson - PrisonPlanet.com

2001 - The Real Bin Laden

2011 - The Fake 'Bin Laden'

Every indication clearly points to the recent raid being a manufactured ploy to return Americans to a state of post-9/11 intellectual castration. Since President Obama announced the death of Osama Bin Laden, there has been literally a deluge of evidence that clearly indicates the whole episode has been manufactured for political gain and to return Americans to a state of post-9/11 intellectual castration so that they can be easily manipulated in the run up to the 2012 election. Here are ten facts that prove the Bin Laden fable is a contrived hoax...

1) Before the alleged raid, every intelligence analyst, geopolitical commentator or head of state worth their salt was on record as stating that Osama Bin Laden was already dead, and that he probably died many years ago, from veteran CIA officer Robert Baer, to former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto, to former FBI head of counter-terrorism injection, and in addition, back in 2006, Alex Jones was told directly by two separate high level sources that Bin Laden was already dead and that his death had been announced at the most opportune moment. Top US government insider Dr. Steve R. Pieczenik, a man who held numerous different intelligence positions under four Presidents, serving as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State under Nixon, Ford and Carter, told the Alex Jones Show a week after the raid that Bin Laden died in a gun battle in Tora Bora several months earlier and shortly after he was visited by CIA physicians at the American Hospital in Pakistan in November 2001.

2) The official narrative of how the raid unfolded completely collapsed within days of its announcement. First there were no photographs released, there was no snipers who fired shots. Bin Laden was not killed, and he had already been killed. The White House announced that there was no shotout or just one man who was armed, first Bin Laden was armed and the second armed man was not. Bin Laden was not shot, he was not, first Bin Laden used his wife as a human shield and then he did not. First the compound was described as a $1 million dollar ‘mansion’ then it turned out to be a rubbish-strewn dilapidated compound that was worth less than a quarter of that. Almost every single aspect of the official narrative has changed since Obama first described the raid as the reason the White House struggles to keep its story straight.

3) The alleged body of Bin Laden was hastily dumped in the sea to prevent any proper procedure of identification. The White House claimed this was in accordance with normal Islamic burial rituals, however numerous Muslim scholars all over the globe disputed this claim, pointing out that Muslims can only be buried at sea if they die at sea. While the White House claimed that Bin Laden’s death on May 1st was proven by DNA and facial recognition evidence, such proof was never released for public scrutiny and the Obama administration refused to release photos of Bin Laden’s dead body, suggesting a cover-up.

4) Despite the fact that the White House released “situation room” photos which purported to show Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, Joe Biden and the rest of Obama’s security staff watching the raid which killed Bin Laden live, it was later admitted bycia that not all of them were present. It is clear that Obama could not have seen the raid because the live feed was cut off before the Navy SEALs entered the compound. The photos were described by many as having “historical significance,” forming “a captivating” record of Obama’s greatest success and being the “defining moment” of his Presidency. One image showed Hillary Clinton with her hand over her mouth as if witnessing an anxious or crucial moment in the raid. Media reports at the time claimed that the photos represented the moment when “The leader of the free world saw the terror chief shot in the left eye.” However, the photos were staged as a PR stunt for public consumption, nobody in the photos even saw Bin Laden killed like, nor did they see the Navy SEALs even enter the compound.

5) As even mainstream journalists began to cast suspicion on the official narrative behind the raid, the media reported that Al-Qaeda had confirmed every detail of Obama’s address to the nation. However, the conduit for such a claim was in fact an organization called SITE, which is a notorious Pentagon propaganda front. It was the daughter of an Israeli spy that has been caught on numerous occasions releasing fake cartoons to Al-Qaeda videos at the most politically expedient times for both the Bush and Obama administrations. The SITE organization is nothing more than a contractor for the US government, receiving some $500,000 a year annually from Uncle Sam, and yet the corporate media instantly swallowed and regurgitated SITE’s claim that “Al-Qaeda” had confirmed the official story after SITE directed them to an anonymous posting on an Islamic website.

6) Almost every single neighbor that lived near the alleged Bin Laden compound in Abbottabad that was interviewed by news reporters said with absolute certainty that they had never seen Bin Laden and that they knew of no evidence whatsoever to suggest he lived there. Since the town is a staging ground for the Pakistani military, which has a training facility situated virtually a stones throw away from the alleged Bin Laden compound, residents were required to show ID when they moved into the area. Pakistani troops and anti-terror police in the town refused to confirm that Bin Laden had lived in the house. Barack Obama himself admitted to 60 Minutes that the White House was only 5% sure that Obama lived there before the raid and this uncertainty prompted concerns that the US Navy SEALs sent in could have targeted a “prince from Dubai” or some other individual that was not Bin Laden.

7) The videos released by the White House this which purport to show Osama Bin Laden making Al-Qaeda tapes in October-November 2010 are almost identical to footage first released by Pentagon front group SITE nearly four years ago. Remember, a May 2010 Washington Post story reported how the CIA had admitted to making fake Bin Laden videos. Despite the White House’s insistence that the footage of Bin Laden is recent, he looks younger and healthier than tapes released almost a decade ago, having apparently dyed his beard black. A separate video that purports to show Bin Laden in his compound watching satellite TV channels depicts a much older looking man with a gray beard. Analysts have pointed out that the man has different shaped ears to real Osama pictures from back in 2001. A doctor has also pointed out the fact that the man in the tapes released Saturday has no problem moving his hand for the war on terror, almost clearly illustrates how Bin Laden was unable to move his left upper extremity because of a permanent injury probably related to a gun shot wound. The cameraman would fill the back of Bin Laden’s head as he watches television is also dubious. Residents in the town of Abbottabad claim the man in the video is not Osama, with one individual claiming that the man labeled by the White House as being Bin Laden is actually his neighbor, a man named Akbar Han.

8) Despite the fact that numerous neo-cons came out on the days after the alleged raid to erroneously assert that torturing terror suspects at Guantanamo Bay led to the discovery of Bin Laden himself, the supposed world’s most wanted terrorist and a treasure trove of terror information, despite the fact that he was unarmed, was not taken in for questioning, he was instantly shot in the head according to the official narrative.

9) The US government has been caught on several occasions within the past decade staging staged killing for the purposes of generating contrived, pro-war sentiment amongst the American public. Both the ‘murder’ of Jessica Lynch and the ‘death’ of Pat Tillman were complete fables, scripted and staged for public consumption with the truth and unleashed on Americans as part of a psychological warfare offensive to elicit the ‘war on terror’. These fear mongering movie scripts are pure fiction in order to justify the war on terror, notably in the cases of Jessica Lynch and Pat Tillman, why on earth should we believe them now?

10) Despite the fact that Obama announced a week after the raid on live television that the world was staring “sadder” because Bin Laden was dead, his administration, with the aid of the fearmongering mass media, instantly seized upon the situation to terrify Americans into being afraid of imminent “reprise” terror attacks inside the United States, later claiming that Bin Laden had formulated an “aspirational rather than operational” plan to derail US trains that travel over 500mph, although no trains in the US can actually travel at such speeds. This led “terror experts” to salivate over how TSA agents were now needed in shopping malls to stick their hands down Americans pants, while New York Senator Chuck Schumer called for the no fly list to be expanded to trains and subways. Obama hurled to ground zero for a photo op as he desperately tried to use the bin Laden corpse to update the “patriotic” video means of boosting his flagging poll numbers. Others, like Democrat Bill Richardson, exploited the situation to try and push through policies that had no connection to Bin Laden or terrorism at all, like cap and trade. The haste with which the whole Bin Laden fable was exploited for political points scoring and as a psychological ploy to return Americans to a post-9/11 state of intellectual castration was painfully transparent, clearly suggesting that the entire facade was planned well in advance to achieve precisely those goals in the run up to 2012.
The Mainstream Media: A Weapon of Mass Deconstruction

By Sally Exoudhu

The media is the man in the middle between the New World Order and the rest of us, the general population. The mass media is a weapon of war to destroy critical thinking and ultimately society and everything in it that is moral, decent and normal. The mass media belongs to the New World Order and all its staff are paid by the Almighty New World Order Bank.

It’s too-the-line or be out of a job. There’s no room for critical thinking, individuality, or spontaneity.

Cognitive dissonance:

The enemy, which happily pays for this media weaponry is kept in a state of constant Orwellian doublethink, bombarded by cries after crisis, fear mongering and media terrorism on the one hand, and constant mind-manipulative drivel on the other, pertaining to its most anti-antinomic instincts. Victims of mass media weaponry are left in a state of utter dehumanization and powerlessness. The mass media does all the thinking for them. Victims cannot even see the sky overhead in daily chemical air raids. If a news anchor hasn’t mentioned it, it can’t be true. It’s not only the gutter press. The so-called academic Right/left media puppets are even more dangerous, being too well-dressed to understand that they are building their own concentration camps to exterminate themselves and their own children.

Predictive programming:

This is brainwashing which familializes and propels the victim for forthcoming life-situations which otherwise would be disgusting by unacceptable. Science fiction is full of these, and all it is, are television soaps, comedies, dramas, documentaries, advertisements, "news" and music. Predictive programming is funded top-down by the New World Order. It works best when the victim’s brains is in a locked and receptive state ready to soak up data. Television has achieved this intended goal. Victims are also kept exhausted on a financial/career treadmill, so the brainwashing is most effective.

Deconstruction:

The mass media invades, attacks, and destroys society as we know it. The take down happens in stages. The first stage is demoralization. The culminating mass-media promotion of the grossest of sexual perversions, promiscuity, drugging, marriage shattering, family dysfunction, child molesting and the rest. This last stage destroys them in chaos. When a culture enters into chaos, there are two possible outcomes, civil war or invasion by a foreign power.

The whole mass media wizardry is scripted and enacted out from the outset for the purpose of invasion, resource stripping and domination.

Reconstruction:

Of course, the media is also reconstituting society to suit the New World Order, some good themes to watch out for are: depopulation, eugenics, transhumanism, "bad" genes, posthumanism, genetic manipulation and climate tampering.

The system is like a pyramid of apples, outside a fruit store. If a few apples at the bottom could use individuality, imagination, spontaneity or free will and decide to leave, the pile would collapse. We have these abilities as individuals. We must use them. The mass media’s job is to prevent us knowing this. It doesn’t matter who’s at the top of the pile.

Democracy Is An Illusion: Foreign Bankers Hold Our Purse Strings

By Henry Makow - www.henrymakow.com

A "Par Side" cartoon describes our innocence about democracy:

A slave rowing a Viking ship puts up his hand and calls to the whip master: "You hoo! Oh, you hoo, I think I’m getting a bluster."

Like this man, most people cling to the belief that our leaders represent our interests.

"You, hon, Mr. Bush, you lied about Iraq having weapons of mass destruction."

At an elite gathering, Bush perused under his lector and quipped: "Where are those weapons of mass destruction?"

A tiny cabal of international bankers chooses our "leaders." This clique, which subtly controls every significant facet of our society is gradually establishing an global Orwellian police state. Much of the upper and middle class has been duped to think they are building a better world.

PROVE IT, SAY YOU?

"The Naked Capitalist" by W.C. Skousen (available at www.wc.com & www.booksfinder.com) is yet another smoking gun. It is based on the revelations contained in Professor Carroll Quigley’s "Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time." (1966)

Quigley, a Professor of History at the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University was a trusted insider who had access to their private archives. He felt the itch, which he supported, was too important to be kept hidden. However, shortly after publication, his book was taken off the market.

Clean Skousen was an FBI agent for 16 years and the Police Chief of Salt Lake City for four years. His "The Naked Capitalist" distills the most shocking evidence from Quigley’s daunting 1300-page book.

At just 122 pages, "The Naked Capitalist" (1970) is a concise, lucid and absolutely convincing account of the international banker conspiracy. Historians who have largely ignored this material have betrayed the public trust.

OUR PREDICATION

Quigley confirms that a network of banking dynasties has, in Skousen’s words, "acquired a choke-hold on the affairs of practically the entire human race." According to Quigley, they include "Baring, Lazard, Erlanger, Warburg, Schroder, Kuhn, Loeb, Midland Maid, and all above Rothschild and Morgan." (Citations are from "Tragedy and Hope", 51-52)

Quigley confirms that, starting with the Bank of England in 1694, these dynasties organized and owned elites in a system of central banks that charge their respective national billions of dollars in interest for the privilege of using currency backed by the nation’s own credit. In other words, they have carried off a swindle of monstrous proportions.

Quigley quotes William Gladstone who as Chancellor of the Exchequers said in 1852: "The government itself was not to be a substantive power in matters of finance, but was to leave the Money Power supreme and unquestioned." (523)

Pat another way, a private credit monopoly controls the purse strings of all the world’s governments.

Able to create money out of nothing, they naturally grabbed as much of the world’s real wealth as they could. Quigley writes about the formation of their American cartel:

"The period 1884-1933 was the period of financial capitalism in which investment bankers moved into commercial banking and insurance on the one side, and into railroading and heavy industry on the other side, were able to mobilize enormous wealth and wield enormous economic, political and social power." (71)

Indeed their representatives, the "Eastern Establishment" i.e. the Morgans and now the Enron took the United States.(70) The principal mechanism is the Council on Foreign Relations.

According to Quigley, the ultimate goal is "nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole. This system was to be controlled...by the central banks...acting in concert." (524)

Quigley confirms that the bankers have usurped mankind’s collective instincts by financing the Socialists and Communist movements. Bankers love big government because the ultimate monopoly is the government. They can take over their competition and control debt, resources, market demand and labor.

Speaking of the Communist takeover of the US government in the 1930’s and 1940’s, Quigley writes: "It was the realization that the power of these energetic left-wing leaders was necessary to their own power of Commmunist power but was ultimately power of the internal monal financial coater," (554)

In other words, millions of idealists committed to human brotherhood and equality were (and are) duped into adopting a totalitarian scheme to concentrate wealth and power in the hands of the super rich. More neo-Leefards, Communists, Fascists and Communists continue to prosper while unscrupulously pretending to serve humanity.

The Money Power controls the debate and encourages gridlock by backing all political shades and marginalizing anyone who shines the spotlight on them. Ever wonder why Naomi Chomsky never mentions international bankers and the credit system?

We are controlled through direct ownership and advertising.

Quigley writes: "To Morgan all political parties were simply organizations to be used, and the firm was careful to keep a foot in all camps. Morgan himself, as a member of the Morgan Club, was allied with the Republicans; Russell C. Loewfing was allied with the Democrats; Grayson Murphy was allied with the extreme Right; and Thomas W. Lamont was allied with the Left." (945)

The Lamont family was "spooners and financial angels to almost a score of extreme left movements including the Communist Party itself." (945)

CONCLUSION

A small cabal of people who are not even citizens hold the financial purse strings of every nation.

This goes a long way to explaining "globalization" and the path to one world government. It explains the assault on race, religion, nation and family. The bankers want a homogeneous world that offers no basis of resistance.

It explains why in a time of supposed security danger, the southern border of the US is practically porous. The bankers want to undermine America’s European character, which it perceives as a threat.

It explains the war on Iraq, and the fact that there is no opposition in the mainstream parties. This war is a war to control all of civilisation and assimilate Islam. It is also an opportunity to create more debt and enrich the bankers and their collaborators.

It explains 9-11, the Patriot Regession Act and the phony "War on Terror."

It explains the depraved mass media and stupifying education system. I could go on but you get the picture. We are all at the mercy of a gigantic stage. At the very least, let’s not waste energy thinking we live in a free and open society. Our democracy is a joke.
AUSTERITY MEANS POVERTY AND THEY WANT US TO KEEP IT PERMANENTLY!

Paul Adams

Will the aftermath of the recent Japanese tsunami and earthquake prove to be the final nail in the coffin of the global economy? As the consequences of widespread devastation in Japan become apparent, commentators are reporting shortages of parts and components for manufacturing. Car plants in the UK have been closed temporarily or otherwise due to a shortage of vital components. Because of the fragile nature of the interconnected global supply chain any shocks to the distribution system can cause major problems for manufacturers. There are also reports that many major Japanese corporations may also be affected by these shortages. The concern now is that second quarter earnings reports may make for dire reading. If this is the case, the stock market will plummet. Japan’s GDP debt ratio is estimated (2010) to stand at 225.8% but Japan has been forced to borrow significant amounts of money to carry out reconstruction adding to its debt. As if this was not enough, Europe remains in a mess financially. Portugal has sought a bailout while Spain is seen as ‘too big to bail’. The only response to debt is to create more debt.

As countries seek further assistance by way of loans, there should be at least some confidence about the ability to pay, that is economic growth. However, more debt places more burden on the people through ‘austerity’ measures in order to repay debt. How can any nation or people pay ever-increasing amounts of debt while their ability to pay continues to diminish? The situation in Japan just shows the risks of the growing interconnectedness of the global economy. A ‘shock’ of any description in one part of the global economy can cause disastrous shock waves around the world. Wholesalers, suppliers and exporters are as on the supply side and in nature. Consequently, the individual nation state’s ability, to conduct its own affairs, has been weakened.

This is the process called Globalization. Whether it is Japan that finally brings the economic master ‘Japan’s economy’ remains to be seen, but there may be many other factors which need to be considered. China was reported last year to have overtaken Japan as the world’s second biggest economy. China has become the powerhouse, manufacturing consumer goods for others. This was praised in 2010, the ‘China Declaration’. This treaty was signed in 1973 at a conference of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization. US debt has been escalating with much of this debt held by China. The irony of China’s success is based on ever-increasing amounts of debt owed to western countries. In an article by Nancy Marshall Gutek, Marketplace morning report, March 1st 2011, China’s US debt has been revised to $1.660 trillion, more than previously thought.

Obviously the logic is that these patterns of consumption cannot continue. The debt is simply unrepealable. US workers are still paid considerably less than Chinese workers and their jobs may continue to move abroad under the current economic arrangements. Those patterns of consumption and debt are clearly unsustainable. If the debt crisis is not resolved soon we may see a collapse under ‘austerity’ in both the US and the western world in general. As more is taken from the people, by way of taxation, to prop up this money system, the real value of salaries is being reduced, pensions and investments will not give the returns that were expected. ‘Austerity’ may not necessarily come from a shortage of commodities although this is also possible, but from a shortage of money which may finally put an end to some form of

Food for thought, but we'll need your fingerprints

In another bizarre example of the so called ‘nanny state’ or as it should be known, the totalitarian state schools in Britain are pushing to ban parents from providing their children’s lunches under the guise of healthy eating.

This is despite the fact that parents are responsible for what goes into their children’s bodies. This includes food, drink, medicines and the odd marble they lie up their nostrils.

Since when did anyone with a college course in teaching suddenly become a nutritionist? Why won’t parents simply laugh at the notion of the school deciding what their children eat and simply ignore this further attempt to rob the rights of parents simply because some bureaucrat or headmaster thinks it’s a good idea? What is wrong with you?

They are YOUR children. They are NOT your property.

If you allow the government to dictate what your children eat, that’s your fault. Will you allow the headmaster to dictate what colour underwear your 10 year old daughter can wear? Will you allow him to check?

How about fingerprints to get the school dinners they want to force down their throats? They’re already doing that! According to master propagandists, the BHA, over 100 schools in 2010 were using fingerprints for food, healthy books and cashless payments. No doubt the food will contain copious amounts of genetically modified, cancer causing ‘frankenfood’ to ensure sterilization as well.

Will you let your children be indoctrinated into the ‘Church of climate’ and be brainwashed into believing CO2 is a toxic gas and that when they breath it they are polluting? Do you even know what YOUR children are being taught in school? Don’t you think you should find out?

Are you aware that the EU wants to legalise paraphilia and that this is being brought into the curriculum in other EU countries? Is this what you want?

Remember the colour of little Jenny’s underwear?

It’s time parents took full responsibility for their children’s well being and it would suggest that you start saying no to ALL of this totalitarian deception before it ultimately destroys your children and turns them into little ‘fitter youth’.

If your children’s school starts to teach paraphilia I would hope that every parent of every child would take their children from the state school system never to return them into the clutches of evil.
Will Globalists Trigger Yet Another World War?

By Giordano Bruno

World War III is the most iconic event in American culture that never happened. Since the early 1950’s, generations have been preparing for it, writing books about it, producing films and fictional accounts on it, and playing video games based on it. The concept of another world war is so ingrained into our popular consciousness that it has become almost mythological. It is a legend, a fantasy story of something far away and incomprehensible, often associated with Tim LaHaye novels and action-adventure narratives of religious prophecy and Armageddon.

The cartoon-ization of a “last great global war” has a natural tendency of human beings to cope with terrifying ideas, often by intellectually trivializing them, and thereby making them easily digestible, much like the proverbial public speaking tactic of imagining the audience with their clothes off.

The problem with this development in our society is that it causes us to become cynical to the point of idiocy when confronted with very real threats. By convincing ourselves that such an event is an impossibility we leave ourselves unprepared and without a conceptual point of reference, because we have not thought about the scenario in a practical, level-headed manner. This is akin to a man who has never even considered the likelihood of being mugged on the street, versus a man who has trained in self-defense for just such a situation.

When the event occurs, the two men will have totally different psychological reactions, the first man utterly surprised and out of his element with little to no constructive response, and the latter man far less mentally phased and thus more likely to survive.

With this fact in mind, we will endeavor to explore recent world events, along with international agreements and tensions, to show how they could be used by Global Elites to trigger a war reaching across the planet.

Most Wars Happen To

The Benefit Of Globalists

Elites often attempt to paint a pretty picture, a glossy flower filled with love, when it comes to the creation of World Government. The truth however has been and always will be that the road to globalization is paved with the death of innocents and civilizations. Elites move towards the formation of centralized global government has been preceded by unfathomable destruction. This may seem futile and horribly regressive to us, but to Globalists, war is a highly effective and useful tool.

Conflict on a massive scale creates an atmosphere of tension and terror, giving the average man, even men who are nowhere near danger, a sort of perpetual tunneled vision. World War has the ability to trigger the “fight or flight” psychological response and within it an entire society over long periods of time. Maintaining such a mental state in a human being can cause severe exhaustion and emotional imbalance. Imagine the process of interrogation and torture used on a prisoner in places such as Guantanamo Bay, then apply that to an entire nation of people. War breaks down our psychological defenses as a society, and makes us vulnerable to suggestion.

By creating war, Globalists change not only the political landscapes of nations, but also the emotional and rational checks and balances of every individual who has not prepared himself to handle the pressures of war. In this way, people can be made to forget how things were before, and accept a new world, a world designed around the corrupt appetites of elite minorities, if only to make the fear stop.

I often hear arguments that war is simply a product of temporary runs insanity. That it is often a “hooligan,” an “overreaction.” Make no mistake, governments and the power brokers behind them WANT war. Indeed, they commonly design wars that never would have happened without their help. Here are only a few of the many examples:

The Spanish American War:

The Spanish American war was one of the first to be a wholly media driven event, created out of thin air and forced on the American public. Elites in Washington, including Theodore Roosevelt, wanted to move the U.S. into an expansionist policy and the realm of empire building. Most American citizens wanted nothing to do with expansionism. Our country had been built in opposition to empires after all. Later William Randolph Hearst, newspaper mogul and elitist, Hearst papers across the country went on a rabid spree, reporting on battles between the Spanish government and Cuban guerrilla fighters that were not actually happening, along with exaggerated dramatizations of Spanish government mistreatment of civilians. Of course, the Spanish were certainly not treating the Cuban people well, but the fact is that Hearst made stories up in order to paint a grave picture with which to manipulate Americans at home is what is important here.

Upon his arrival in Cuba, Hearst correspondent Frederic Remington caught to Hearst, “Everything is quiet. There is no trouble. There will be no war. I wish to return.” Hearst reportedly replied, “Please remain. You furnish the pictures and I’ll furnish the war.”

Hearst’s propaganda was not quite enough to make the people want to forcefully overtake another country or adopt expansionism. So, on February 15, 1898, an explosion was set on the USS Maine off the coast of Havana, Cuba. 260 out of 355 sailors lost their lives, though strangely, only two ranked as officers were killed. Hearst papers went into overdrive, claiming the Spanish had sunk her with a mine of torpedo, and the pretext for war in Cuba was established. Ever since, the U.S. has held an ever more prominent policy of expansionism and empire building.

Interestingly, most studies, including those of historian Douglas MacArthur, show that the desire from the Maine explosion pointed outward, indicating an explosion from INSIDE the ship, not outside. The government still maintains that this must have been “accidental”.

World War I:

The beginning of WW I is often blamed on a “mindlessly mechanical series of events,” but this is simply nonsense. The entanglement of America in the affairs of Europe was carefully orchestrated and far from accidental as the public was made to believe. Norman Dodd, former director of the Committee to Investigate Tax Exempt Foundations of the U.S. House of Representatives, testified that the Committee was invited to study the minutes of the Committee for Economic Development for International Peace as part of the Committee’s investigation. The Committee stated “The trustees of the Foundation brought up a single question. If it is desirable to alter the life of an entire people, is there any means more efficient than war... They discussed this question... for a year and came up with an answer. There are no known means more efficient than war, assuming the objective is altering the life of an entire people. That is how to change a nation. How do we involve the United States in a war? This is in 1916.”

Once again, Americans had no interest in expansionism or fighting wars along side Monarchists that we will good omens despising. The key to how we were fooled once again into going against our better instincts lies in the sinking of yet another ship, the Lusitania.

The Lusitania was attacked by a German U-boat and sunk on May 7, 1915, killing 198 passenger and was later used as a pretext for drawing the U.S. (into WW I). This is the commonly held view taught in every high school history class. The problem is that it is only half the story. What it does not mention is the fact that the British goaded the Germans into the attack.

In that era, there still existed “rules of war” one of which was the expectation that German U-Boats should surface before destroying any merchant vessel and allow the passengers to flee the ship. The Germans adhered to this standard until the British began arming merchant ships and ordering them to fly the colors of neutral countries. They then went to sink any U-Boat that surfaced to deliver a warning. The good faith of the understanding was ruined, and the Germans decided it was safer to sink the ships without warning and be done with it.

The British also began smuggling arms and explosives using regular merchant ships as cover, making them participants in the war, and therefore targets. The Lusitania was no exception.

For decades the U.S. and British governments denied that the Lusitania was carrying arms, until even exploring the wreckage discovered cannons of nearly 4 million rounds of ammo! Meaning according to the article of war, the Lusitania was in fact classified as a warship, and therefore a target.

The most shocking element to this engineered disaster however was the fact the U.S. and British governments were well aware that the ship would be attacked, and ALLOWED it to occur.

The German Embassy took out ads in U.S. newspapers warning that the Lusitania could be made a target. The U.S. State Department in turn contacted each of the newspapers and threatening suggestions that they refrain from printing the ad. A small portion of the newspapers ignored the State Department and printed anyway, but most of the passengers of the Lusitania never saw it.

Finally, and most importantly, is a fascinating discussion from the book “The Intimate Papers of Colonel House,” between House; an advocate (some would say propagandist) to Woodrow Wilson, and Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary of England before the attack on the Lusitania occurred. The coldness of the exchange is haunting:

Grey: “What will America do if the Germans sink an ocean liner with American passengers on board?”
House: “I believe that a flame of indignation would sweep the United States and that in 14 days would be sufficient to carry us into the war.”

World War II:

World War II was perhaps the first war in which Globalists created an enemy completely from scratch. That’s right; the Nazis were organized and funded by Elites from across the world, including those here in America.

Hitler himself was considered a joke among Germans when he first began his trades for an “Aryan Empire,” and was shrugged off by the mainstream as a lachrymose, but Germany was also in the middle of the worst economic collapse in recent memory, and when Hitler gained support from the Nazi Party, a Freimaurer-like secret society in Europe, and also began receiving investment from Wall Street interests, including the Rockefeller family, the German people started taking notice.

Hitler’s new antifascistic friends could bring to Germany what the people desperately wanted: jobs and cold hard cash.

The collision between the Rockefellers and the Nazis was well documented, and was first exposed by the discovery of the Von Knienfeld Documents during the Nazi trials. These documents outline how the Rockefellers, through their company Standard Oil, supplied the means by which they built the rail network of the German army, independent of which Nazi warplanes would have been inoperable.

The Rockefellers also started the first egemene population control program here in the U.S. in 1939, eventually sterilizing over 60,000 “genetically inferior” Americans long before Hitler put the idea into practice in Germany.

The Rockefeller Foundation helped fund the German ego-mass program and even funded the program that Josef Mengele worked in before he went to Auschwitz.

And how about the exposure of George W. Bush’s grandfather, Prescott Bush, as a Nazi collaborator and launderer of Nazi funds?

Iraq / Afghanistan War:
I won’t go into the long and mind-boggling background of the WWI attacks and how they were used to foment a developing war in the Middle East. To do so would take an entire separate article. What I will say is, the “official story” of that event has been shown on numerous occasions by thousands of researchers, many of whom are architects and engineers, to be riddled with holes and completely unanswerably by any measure of logic. The collapse thereof has been proven scientific fact by the government agency tasked with constructing this event for the many millions surrounding the (structure) failure of WTC 1,2,7 and 7S. The story continues to refuse to release the source data for their computer models to the public to proving that the towers fell naturally due to burning jet fuel. Without this source data, note the number of construction companies that have said they are simply opinions backed by nothing.

Dr. Steven Jones along with eight other scientists around the world have published a peer review paper in the Open Chemistry Journal. In the paper, they stated that there was a doubt that military grade nanothermite (demolition) is present in large quantities in the rubble of the WTC.

This means that demolitions were placed in the buildings most likely by someone with easy access and were used to aid in their collapse. The suspects for this operation I leave it for you to decide, though I find it highly improbable that “Muslim Extremists” were involved.

After each of these war was concocted, governments and Globalists around the planet pushed for even greater centralization of authority and consolidation of power.

After the Spanish American War, Americans were heralded towards accepting the idea of U.S. global expansionism. After World War I, we were convinced to hunt oursevles into European affairs and squander money and resources on unnecessary conflicts. We also witnessed the creation of the League of Nations, a pre-U.N. global body meant as a beginning foundation for neighbors or neighbors, including the Rockefeller family, the German people started taking notice.

After the Spanish American War, Americans were

The Sinking of the Lusitania - Brought the Americans into World War 1

Now we get to the heart of the matter. Many of us have already forgotten the brief war between Russia and Georgia started when U.S. backed Georgia invaded South Ossetia approved, randomly shooting and bombing civilians, making Russia to intercede. Not long after this event, Russia began announcing openly plans to expand its navy into the Middle East, including the construction of Navy Bases in Yemen, and Libya, as well as the modernization of a navy for the Russians already control on the coast of Syria.

Yemen’s dealings with Russia also include major arms sales:
Yemen recently announced plans to work closely with Iran in defending its coast from pirates.

What does the U.S. presence in Yemen mean? It means a lot of random gunfire (at least the appearance of such) and the increase of Middle Eastern tensions to a new level. We are getting in a position of clash with Russian interests.

Enter Israel:
The Israeli Government has said openly and often that it desires a Iran if they continue to build nuclear power facilities, even going so far as to draw up plans to use low-yield nuclear weapons against them.

This leads us to what may end up being the most important news of last years besides the Great Recession; a defense pact signed between Iran and Syria.

So, what elements are we dealing with here? We have a nuclear armed Israel itching to attack Iran. We have a destabilized and dangerous Russia with Syria against Israel. We have with Russian many bases and weapons on its soil, and we have the U.S. rampaging through the Middle East encroaching on the borders of Pakistan and Yemen, essentially pissing off everyone. What we have is a Globalist made recipe for disaster, using the same ingredients they have used for the last several major wars.

The Trigger:
An Israeli attack on Iran could draw in the U.S., especially if Russia were to intervene through Syria. The likelihood of a large scale false flag attack is very high over the next couple years, designed to frighten the American people into support for police state conditions at home, as well as greater complicity in an expanded war overseas. The war would not even necessarily have to become a nuclear war as in the last war of the Soviet Republic; its currency ready to hyperinflate, it treasury on the edge of insolvency, its debt holders becoming its enemies, and its government looking for any excuse to dictate personal liberties for the “greater good”.

Russia and other Eastern European nations are to be forming an opposing economic and (perhaps political) block, yet the ultimate goal of the elites there is the same as it is for elites here. If war were to occur, it would once again bring puppet governments net loose upon each other in an illusionary conflict in which the real targets are the masses themselves.

The goal is to force the people to take sides, to divide them against each other and make them forget the true enemy, the elites who cultivated the problems in the first place. Under the threat of world conflict or rampant terrorism, the average American could be made to feel “disenfranchised,” or even “traitorous” for speaking out against the war, while those who point out the dangers of the police state could simply be labeled terrorists themselves. Such an atmosphere could also distract our attention away from the imminent economic breakdown. It is difficult to imagine this happening here, but think of how many Germans laughed at Hitler’s early days, as opposed to how many eventually followed him when they were faced with absolute desperation.

In the midst of all this of course would stand the EU and the UN I believe whether a war is triggered or the economy is simply left to disintegrate, it will be the UN and European interests that will stand to lose, with a new stabilized currency and unified government that all seem lost. Just as in the past, Globalists want to erode history, rewrite it, and play the part of the hero. With an extra century or more of constant propaganda, who would know to argue otherwise?

The Solution:
What we have just covered is a possible state of affairs based on the circumstances of the moment. It is by no means perfect. While this situation is nowhere near convying the gravity of the task before us, and the reality is that it is we who must halt the machine in the tracks. We cannot have it to future generations, to our children or theirs. It must stop right here. This is our last chance at humanity and then there may be a second chance for humanity. By continuing to educate our neighbors on the threats confronting us, and by preparing for the worst, mentally as well as physically, we can also continue to educate and stop the threat.

I sometimes hear words like “impossibility,” “pointlessness,” “futility,” in regards to our situation, and the obstacle which we face. “Impossibility is an empty term driven by desire, not by concrete reality. There is no impossibility; only destiny, and destiny is something we make, not follow. As far as I have seen men fall, I never have in the whole of my life believed there was anything we could not do. As long as we hold by what is true, there is no such thing as the insurmountable.

Regardless of where we are headed, be it moderately troubling times, or the worst of all possible worlds, our Philanthropy? Beware Billionaires Bearing Gifts!

International media carried reports in 2010 of the Bill Gates-Warren Buffett philanthropic scheme called The Giving Pledge. On 4 August, the Giving Pledge revealed the names of 40 individuals and families who pledged to give away at least half of their fortunes during their lifetimes or at death. Buffett and Gates, who initially planned to give away 70 to 80 of the Forbes 400. They plan to approach the remainder and to take this challenge beyond the US. They held a dinner in Beijing in October 2010 to persuade Chinese billionaires to participate in this venture.

News of the initial gathering of this group (curiously called The First Supper) appeared in a report by New York publisher, Niall O'Dowd, on 18 May 2009. Participants included the Davids Rockefeller Sr and Jr, George Soros, Ted Turner, Michael Bloomberg, Chuck Feeney and Oprah Winfrey. A media blackout ensured that two subsequent dinners were unreported and why billionaires were able to speak openly about their fortunes and ideas for philanthropy. Fortune magazine published a Gates-Buffett informed article on 16 June 2010.

The Giving Pledge promises a massive increase in the money going to philanthropy. Forbes magazine estimated the 2009 net worth of the Forbes 400 at $1.2 trillion. Fifty percent of the net worth of these 400 would be $600 billion. That is the minimum amount Buffett and Gates are targeting.

Philanthropists who made the pledge posted a letter saying why they did it. The common denominator was a belief that the lives of the very rich can be empty if their wealth does nothing to advance the greater good.

Warren Buffett makes it clear that although the amounts being pledged are large, we are not talking about the widow's mite. In pledging to divest himself of 99% of his own fortune, Buffett says that he and his family will give up nothing they need or want. He says that his pledge will "leave my life untouched and that of my children as well."

The Giving Pledge has not been universally welcomed. US taxpayers have been compelled to commit much more than $600 billion to bailouts and stimulus plans to prop up an economy which has caused them much hardship and which have not worked, but which have profited the billionaires. Many comments posted on Fortune's website are critical and angry. Some suggest that the billionaires were giving, fearing Obama would take wealth from them. One poster said that the billionaires' lifetimes of successful greed could not be offset by controlling who and what cause would get assistance. Suggestions were made that the philanthropic billionaires should act independently so that there would be diversity in the causes that would benefit.

There is considerable merit in this last suggestion. One very particular obsession of Meara Gates, Buffett and Turner is population control. The Sunday Times reported on 24 May 2010 that the First Supper was a secret meeting to consider how the financed wealth could be used to "slow the growth of the world's population and spread improvements in health and education." The paper reported that the philanthropists discussed joining forces to overcome political and religious obstacles to change. Taking cues from Gates, the first supper decided to fund what is called the "surgical contraceptive," and "a consensus emerged that they would back a strategy in which population growth would be tackled as a potentially disastrous environmental, social and industrial issue.

Bill and Melinda Gates have given millions of dollars to abortion providers like Planned Parenthood (of which Gates has said his father is a former head). Bill Gates is on record as supporting population reduction programmes. The Gates Institute for Population and Reproductive Health provides abortion fellowships at Johns Hopkins University. In an extraordinary statement at the TED conference in February 2010, Gates suggests that vaccines have a role in population reduction. He is a huge supporter of vaccination programmes.

The Population and Family Health Sciences Department at Bloomberg School of Public Health in Baltimore MD also provides abortion fellowships.

Ted Turner is on the record calling for a worldwide one child policy similar to the one in China that practices forced abortion and contraceptive sterilisation. Turner has given over $1 billion for UN programmes.

Walter Breuning, has never spoken publicly about his views on abortion. The Wall Street Journal reported that in the 1980s, the Buffett Foundation helped to finance the research and development of the pills that induce abortion. His foundation has also helped finance a lawsuit to overturn the ban on partial-birth abortion in Nebraska. The New York Times revealed in August 2010 that the Kenneth J. Ryan Residency Training Programme, which gives two or three years of seed money for abortion training for OB-GYN residents at medical schools on 50 campuses in the US and Canada, and the Family Planning Fellowship, are both entirely funded by Buffett's foundation. In 2006 Buffett gave the foundation about $3 billion. Tax returns indicate that total giving by the foundation increased from about $100 million in 2007 to $347 million in 2008. In 2008 the foundation gave Planned Parenthood and its affiliates about $4.5 million. Planned Parenthood International got approximately $4 million. The foundation paid out around $50 million with similarities with either the Ryan or the Family Planning Fellowship. Tax records show that most of the spending goes on abortion and contraception matters. Buffett also gave in excess of $10 billion's worth of stock to the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation in 2006.

The Financial Times has described Bill Gates' stated vision of the function of the billionaires as one of decision-making in a new constitutional order. Does wealth give the unelected Greeks and his associates the right to decide who may live or die and the size or composition of any population?

Beware billionaires bearing gifts. They distort democracy.

was useless. Look that up for yourself. All other vaccines claims that they've cured or eliminated disease follow a similar pattern. Better hygiene, clean water and good healthy food was the cause of the decline and any disease worth his smellings salts should know that. If they don't then they're misinformed on a grand scale. Therein lies the problem. Why have doctors been "indoctrinated" to believe that vaccines are the sacred cow of medicine when the historical record clearly shows that they are virtually useless?

Hold onto your sanity because I have some bad news for you.

The real reason for vaccinations, apart from the massive profits to the manufacturers, is to ensure that you live throughout your life, again not only to enrich these same corporations that made you sick, but to ensure that many, if not all of you die before you ever receive your pension and when you are no longer any use to society. That's why you want your retiring later in life and are forcing you through economic terrorism to work longer regardless of your age or health. They want to work you to death.

You will be classed as a burden to society, a financial cost which society has to bear and therefore you will be stigmatised as a 'useless eater'. A consumer of resources needed for the rest of society. When Big Pharma can no longer profit from the illness they give you, you will be left to die.

This is the depopulation agenda promoted under the United Nations Population Conference. In the Department of Economic and Social Affairs. We only need look at Africa, the nation which the United Nations has said themselves, could feed the world. Why then are millions in Africa starving to death on that continent? It's meant to be that way folks! All of us at one time or another have been led to believe in the efficacy of vaccines. I was one of them and had my child vaccinated nearly 30 years ago. I wouldn't even dream of it now!

I think it's safe to say that we're all aware of the real pandemic, as opposed to the fake pandemics of the past. It's called 'CANCER'. Prior to mass vaccination, cancer was extremely rare, as it almost non-existent. Today in the west, we call it a crisis of cancer to the extent that, between one in five to one in two will suffer, many dying, from one form of cancer or another.

What's happened to cause this pandemic?

We only have to look back at the Jonas Salk polio vaccine that went around the world in the full knowledge that it contained the SV40 virus which had no other purpose than to cause cancer yet it was pushed as a vaccine for polio when, as with most vaccines, was in decline prior to any vaccine due to the same factors.

Enter stage right at the TED 2010 conference Mr. Bill Gates, head of Microsoft, the biggest computer firm on the planet. What has Bill Gates got to do with all these vaccines you're wondering? See the gate on the front page. Those are his EXACT words.

Are you beginning to get the picture? The globalist elite care nothing for us and only women and children must be eliminated in their delusional minds to ensure that their 'targets' go into the future with the best of breeding being the only criteria to take saving and ending a life. I am no longer required and that is why we are seeing the loss of our economy, our wealth, our health, and our happiness and ultimately, OUR

Depopulation Through Forced Vaccination: The Zero Carbon Solution!
Challenging the Vaccine Dogma

Dr Sherrif Tenpenny

A chilling, consistent pattern exists in stories told by parents: My child was normal, happy, and healthy. He was walking, learning to talk, playing with his siblings. He was on track developmentally, and everything was normal. At his one-year well baby checkup, the doctor said it was time for his next round of shots. Unhappy shots were given. Within weeks, he was autistic.

The reports vary slightly in context and timing, but the descriptions of thousands of children who suddenly regressed into the isolated world of autism are eerily the same.

What is Autism?

Webster’s defines autism as “a disorder, a positive arrogant assertion of isolation.” Taking off from this definition, medical doctors certainly abound. Many have survived for decades simply because an assertion was the case and then no one questioned. Over time, the alleged was assumed to be fact.

An early example of dogma in the vaccine industry occurred in 1933 when Dr. Simon Flexner held out that polio was a disease caused by a virus entering the body through the nose and mouth. He postulated that paralysis would result when the virus traveled directly from the sinuses to the brain and the spinal cord. Flexner’s assertions about the mode of paralytic disease were never reproduced and it is now known that polio is a gastrointestinal disease, not a respiratory virus.

Difficulties in developing a vaccine occurred because he propagated a dogma that the polio viruses could only grow in neuronal tissue, a culture media that was associated with living chimpanzees in experimental animals. [1] No one attempted to use other types of tissue culture to grow polioviruses. His solo paper remained unquestioned dogma for 25 years until Dr. John Enders found, surprisingly, that the virus would indeed grow in a variety of different tissues. When Enders’ revolutionary discovery was published in Science, January 28, 1949, the entire virology community immediately accepted the new findings. The polio vaccine was produced within five years. A scientific clamp passed off as dogma vanished when challenged by scientific fact.

Present day vaccine dogma is promoted by The Institute of Medicine (IOM), a group of ostensibly impartial physicians, scientists and researchers. After reviewing the industry-funded research papers concluding there is no connection between vaccines and autism, the IOM similarly concludes there is no connection between vaccines and autism. How could they come to any other conclusion?

The phrase, “temporal association does not prove causality,” means that just because two events occur at the same time, one event does not cause the other. The IOM supports the dogma by stating, “Since autism occurs chronologically around the same time as the first year vaccinations, angry parents need something to blame.”

The medical dogma supporting this position is the assertion that “temporal association does not prove causality.” Simply put, the phrase means that even though two events occur at the same time, the second event is not the cause of the other. The implication is that regression into autism would have happened anyway. The administration of several vaccines immediately before the appearance of autism had nothing to do with it. “No matter how much you say to me ‘the child is to blame, not the vaccine.’ Similarly, intense investigations are searching for autism spectrum disorders.” [2] The identification of a corrupted gene will point an incriminating finger at defective parents as the “cause” of their child’s autism.

The following statement was published in the Center for Disease Control (CDC) as their report on autism following infection diseases, reprinted from The Pink Book:

“... there is no distinct syndrome from vaccine administration tempromeds [temporal association] with the adverse events mostly represent background illnesses rather than injuries caused by the vaccine... the vaccine [can] stimulate or precipitate incalculable symptoms of underlying CNS disorders...” (as seizure, infantile spasm, epilepsy or SIDS). By chance alone, some of the sudden can also be temporally related to the vaccine.” [3]

With the rate of autism being one in every 150 births in the US and a new diagnosis of autism being made to 18 month old children suddenly become autistic. There is no answer to this question, in fact, no one has even looked.

Safety Assumptions

The classic example of unquestioned dogma is the long held notion that the sun rotated around the earth. In 1530, Copernicus challenged this assumption with evidence that the earth rotated on its axis once daily according to the stars. Since that time, the concept for the times, the new information was considered heresy. Later, when Galileo supported Copernicus’ conclusion, he was imprisoned, subjected to a trial by Holy Inquisition, and forced to withdraw his evidence to save his life.

Similarly, parents are forced into vaccination decisions by modern day medical contributors. Threats include expulsion from the medical practice and calls to children into protective services with accusations of medical neglect. Parents are told vaccines are safe and necessary for keeping children healthy. But are they really safe?

Vacination is a medical treatment. Assumptions regarding the effectiveness of many medical treatments are published by The Government Accounting Office (GAO) concluded that “only 10-20% of all drugs are approved. The failure of vaccine clinical medical practices have been shown to be efficacious by the link, the vaccine, is required by law, and that the customary practices are assumed to be effective without proof. Vaccination falls into this category.

Contrary to repeated claims by the government and the pharmaceutical industry that vaccines are safe, there have been never been proven to be safe by the gold standard of medical research. The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has never approved a vaccine.

In a placebo-controlled study, the safety of the first vaccine was determined using the neutral substance, such as sugar pill. In vaccine safety trials, a new vaccine is not compared to an inert compound such as those in the study, the “placebo.”

In vaccine safety trials, a new vaccine is not compared to an inert compound such as those in the study, the “placebo.” The vaccine is the “placebo.”

The number of side effects caused by the vaccines are never counted. The number of side effects caused by the placebo vaccine, the vaccines declare the new vaccine to be “safe as placebo.”

Another trick used by industry to promote the safety of vaccines is to discount any part of the study’s results that suggest a possible problem. A previous study from a clinical trial demonstrates how a placebo-controlled study is not a study. The study was designed to determine the safety of a vaccine. The data from a single arm demonstrated a direct correlation between antibody response and protection against pertussis disease.” [10] The esteemed medical journal, Vaccine, states clearly, “It is known that, in many instances, antibody titers do not correlate with protection.” [11]

The dogma that vaccines are safe and effective has become a medical sacred cow, an icon regarded to be above criticism or attack. Challenges to vaccine have often been written off as conspiracy theories. Parents have learned through experience the difficulties of challenging their pediatrician’s vaccine mandates. Nonetheless, many are raising medical profession’s dogmas about vaccines and many are refusing vaccinations for their children.

A benchmark in a civilized society is the absence of contagious diseases, a doctrine that emerged during the pre-antibiotic era. Public health officials attribute low infection rates to mandatory vaccination policies rather than giving credit to improved personal hygiene and modern conveniences such as indoor plumbing. It is time for the truth about vaccines to be widely known. Vaccine safety has not been proven. Vaccines provide no security against vaccine. Vaccines can cause harm. It is time to dispense with the "safe and effective” dogma before one more person is harmed.

The Triumph of the Ill-willed Political and Utopian Psychopathology

Thomas Sheridan

In his paper, Intelligencia as a Person-Situation Interaction, Dr. Daniel J. Cooper lists several examples of critical thinking. He states, “there is another dimension to person-situation interaction; the extent to which people are able to accurately assess the situation and work out possible solutions. Often, critical thinking involves an ability to approach a problem from multiple perspectives and to question assumptions.”

This ability to think critically is essential in understanding the role of psychopaths in society. Psychopaths, as defined by Hanin, are individuals who lack empathy and moral reasoning. They have a distorted sense of reality and are unable to understand or respond to the emotional states of others.

Many psychopaths are able to gain power and hold positions of influence because of their ability to manipulate and control others. They are often charismatic and can charm people into following their commands, even if those commands are harmful to others.

At times, the majority of society might be swayed by the power of psychopaths. This phenomenon is often referred to as the “illusory superiority” of psychopaths. It is the belief that people with psychopathic traits possess superior knowledge, skills, or abilities, which leads to a distorted perception of reality.

Despite the existence of psychopaths, society continues to evolve. The role of technology, particularly social media, has become increasingly important in shaping the way we communicate and interact with others. This has led to a rise in cyberpsychopaths, who use the anonymity of the internet to prey on others.

In conclusion, the triumph of ill-willed psychopaths is a result of their ability to manipulate and control others, as well as the distorted perceptions of reality that they are able to instill in the majority of society. It is essential for individuals to develop critical thinking skills in order to recognize and counter the influence of psychopaths in our society.

Twin Towers Evidence Blows Away Fire Collapse Theory

by James Smith

The catastrophe destruction of the World Trade Center complex is signaled by government reports that have resulted from structural failure due mainly to fires initiated by the impacts of the airplanes. A closer look at the evidence reveals a much more complex dynamic.

Apart from the fact that no steel-framed high-rise building has ever been destroyed by fire prior to or after Sept. 11, the manner in which the buildings started to burn is itself a substantial cause for re-investigation. A fire of that magnitude would likely proceed gradually with large deformations visible in the building's perimeter, with the building toppling over slowly in the direction of the unyielding structural members - in the path of least resistance.

Yet the Twin Towers both came down quite suddenly, without warning, and without any "jets" that would indicate the upper mass was impacting the lower mass. The time frame was measured at 20 to 21 seconds. In fact the incineration was traveling faster and faster second by second - straight down through what was the path of greatest resistance - the 80,000 tons of structural steel below that was least five times stronger than necessary to prevent this load. Physics and other experts agree that this could have happened only if the underlying structural members were removed ahead of the falling upper mass.

The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) acknowledges that each building was destroyed in fewer than a dozen seconds, and that they "came down essentially in free fall."

For the New York City firefighters on the scenes, those 12 seconds were well beyond their prior experiences. Sgt. James Cavagnaro, in the oral histories of 118 first responders, put it this way: "This changed all the rules. We went from a structure to a woman in seconds - in seconds. I couldn't believe the speed of that tower coming down. I heard the rumble. I looked up. Debris was already 50 feet from the ground."

More than a hundred first responders reported experiencing explosions and flashes of light as the destruction commenced.

High Temperatures, Persistent Heat & Molten Steel at WTC Site Challenge Official Story

by Richard Gage, AIA & Andrea Dreger & Gregg Roberts

Extremely high temperatures were evident in the debris area near the footprints of the World Trade Center Twin Towers at and around Ground Zero. These sciences before the destruction of the South Tower, a low-lying area with glass and concrete, surrounded by several smaller furrows, as documented by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST). The material's glowing orange showed that its temperature was close to "white hot" at the very beginning of the flow and "yellow-orange" further down. Iron-rich spheres in the WTC dust are additional proof of temperatures above the melting point of iron. Pyroclastic-like, rapidly expanding dust clouds after the destruction of the Towers can also be explained by the expansion of hot gases.

The high-temperature phenomena at Ground Zero are documented by various sources. Becker Engineering, responsible for safety at Ground Zero, in their report to the American Society of Safety Engineers. Becker's debris pile at Ground Zero was always tremendously hot. Thermal measurements taken every day showed underground temperatures ranging from 800° to over 950°F.

The fact that high-temperature phenomena were an important issue at Ground Zero is strongly supported by the noxious gas emissions. Upon the site, from which images acquired: image by SPOT, MIT, PATHFINDER, Twin Towers' OCEAN, and at least 25 images by Earthlabis, taken between September 18 and October 1, and other airborne measurements by helicopter were taken every day, and the debris piles were burned every day too. Numerous witnesses, including a fire chief and firefighters working on the piles, described the phenomenon of "molten steel." Becker said in written statements are for, example, "molten steel" was observed coming from molten steel... "like you're in a furnace. Like lava, from a volcano." A photograph taken on September 27 by a Ground Zero worker shows an excavating machine lifting debris from the WTC wreckage dumping yellow-orange molten metal.

WTC clean-up workers and 9/11 artifacts are shown in the PBS video "Falling from the Rubble," described what event our friends.

by James Smith

WTC 2: South Tower's destruction exhibits features exploitable only with the use of powerful explosives.

Much of this evidence was also captured on video and by still images. On April 28, 2001, Kasia Beikerman, in a Nov. 7, 2001, New York Times article, described the behaviors of the South Tower as "flying like a rocket."

At the time of the press conference, it was just a few minutes before the last leg of the third building to collapse.

Justice on the Horizon?

by Donald L. English

The 9/11 Truth movement has been wrestling for years with the questions of how to obtain a real investigation that would allow the architects and engineers for 9/11 Truth and countless others to understand and explain this catastrophe. In fact, for instance, don't trust the US Congress when they upstairs and downstairs in the building of evidence in their oversight committee. The OI/11 Commission Report is how is the US government will answer for their actions.

Civil liberties and transparency in US public.

The ideal of universal jurisdiction is contrived to provide powerful support for international terrorism. In addition, a large chunk of the US public. The goal of universal jurisdiction is to criminalize certain activities in other countries, even without the United States being involved. We talk about the justice in other countries, even without the United States being involved. A well-known example of justice in the United States is the trial of the conviction of the World Trade Center.

Building 7 Implosion

Speed of Collapse

As video footage, Building 7 collapsed at free-fall acceleration for a distance of more than 300 feet in less than eight stories. NIST initially deduced Building 7's free-fall in its Final Report released in August 2008. In the technical briefing that followed, NIST's lead investigator, Dr. Shyam Sunder accurately explained, "A free-fall, in this context would be an object that has no structural components below it." He inaccurately claimed that WTC 7 took 40 percent longer than "free-fall time" to collapse, "and that is at all unusual because there was structural resistance that was provided in this particular case. And you had a sequence of..." are fire-fall failures to..." and everything was not instantaneous."

However, physics professor Dr. Fred David Champion had used the existing network television video to carefully document the acceleration of the building during its fall. He discovered that NIST's reasoning had shown conclusively that a significant portion of the building had fallen in free-fall. In fact, he publicly challenged NIST's claims at the technical briefing. Along with several others, he filed formal requests for corrections during the public-comment period.

Having been Constant, NIST revisited its initial denial of free-fall in its Final Report. However, bowing to the pressure of the world's experts, it decided to modify its description of a free-fall object cannot exert force on anything in its path without showing its own fall.

NIST Withheld Evidence

NIST has not provided even a superficially coherent explanation of the evidence that prompted its conclusions relevant evidence into account. What there is is an attempt to hide evidence.

Thermite Inconsistencies

Prior to the NIST investigation, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), had conducted a preliminary investigation, NIST, found that Building 7 itself had been involved in a large fire that the previous 10-story steel-framed building. The analysis of the WTC 7 sample showed, "...the similarity of the steel, including rapid oxidation and multiple... with subsequent intergranular melting..."

NIST's investigation was, primarily iron, oxygen, and sulfur. The report says that WTC 7 was the product of a thermitic reaction. The analysis of the steel, and confirm the intergranular melting.

The New York Times called this "...the most important discovery we've ever made". The Times reported, "What did NIST say in its Final Report about this discovery? Not much, there was no mention of this crucial evidence at all. It was concealed.

Neither jet fuel nor office files can reach speeds of 1,000 mph, much less its evaporation point, even if those critical temperatures had been reached. The jet fuel, oxygen, and sulfur, would have been instantly vaporized. So what could have caused this "thermite" effect?

Thermite is a mixture of powdered iron and aluminum foil. NIST, claimed that, when ignited, reacts violently at high temperatures to produce iron and aluminum oxide. The molten melting point of iron and aluminum oxide... just above 2,000°F. This would require a temperature of 4,000°F. NIST, allow for the iron and aluminum oxide to react. However, the temperatures in the WTC 7 collapse... it is a fact that no one described the result as "a giant blast". The reports that contained its own oxygen, iron, aluminum, oxygen, iron, and aluminum oxide... just as it would have been.

The collapse of WTC 7 Building 7 required the same amount of energy that a thermitic failure is best known as "thermite". The science of thermitic... the Tinsley Tower concrete floors came down as a series of stacked pancakes. There were in fact no pancake floors... be found in the photos or videos of the debris piles. "There's no smoke... It was vaporized," said... naked eye."

Multiple isolated ejections up to 60 stories above ground "crash zone" can be seen exploding horizontally weighing nine tons were hurled up to 400 feet away. This required an incredible amount of energy. The reports that contained its own oxygen, iron, aluminum oxide... just as it would have been.

Summary

The collapse of WTC 7 Building 7 resulted from a thermitic failure in the structure. The Tinsley Tower concrete floors came down as a series of stacked pancakes. There were in fact no pancake floors: the reports that contained its own oxygen, iron, aluminum oxide... just as it would have been.

If WTC 7 was intentionally brought down, this must have been a "smoking gun" that must be investigated. What has been constructed as an "incendiary device" that has been built in a steel-framed building in a 7-story high, 1,000 square-foot structure in less than a second? The operating time of the Tinsley Tower must be re-evaluated as well as the evidence and information about the collapse of all three WTC buildings.

The NIST Project Leader Shyam Sunder explained that the building had not been "free-fall" but had collapsed due to structural failure. He did not have evidence to support the NIST statement. It is now clear that the building by the time of its collapse to the World Trade Center's destruction -- temperatures exceeding 2,000°F.

Nullifying Newton: Official Story Violates Laws of Physics

High School Physics Teacher Corrects NIST

By DAVE BUCK, BSEE

The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) maintained in its August 2008 report that "Free fall velocity was... this conclusion based on the available scientific data, evidence, and eyewitnesses and video records that the building had collapsed under the influence of gravity. It must... might be evidence or how they contributed to the collapse of the building..."

The NIST Project Leader Shyam Sunder explained that the building had not collapsed due to structural failure. He did not have evidence to support the NIST statement. It is now clear that the building by the time of its collapse to the World Trade Center's destruction -- temperatures exceeding 2,000°F. NIST, when confronted publicly with evidence presented by Chambliss, was finally admitted in its November 2008 testimony that WTC 7 fell in free-fall, but they brushed off this admission to collapse that it had been only a "freestanding building".

NIST story was consistent with the results of the global search for evidence of eyewitnesses stating they saw the building fall in free-fall. Further, the mountain-shaped pile of debris and the evidence reviewed in this testimony, and a multi-million-dollar effort to reveal what really happened.

Many other physics analyses are presented by Chambliss on his website 911Truth.org, applying the laws of physics to WTC 7 and the Twin Towers. For a more detailed account of the flawed assumptions of the destruction...
Evidence Destroyed is Justice Denied

By BRUCE McCAIN, B.S.E.A.

The destruction of the three World Trade Center skyscrapers on 9/11 caused the greatest loss of life and property damage in U.S. fire history and constituted the largest structural failure in modern history. This event should have received the most thorough investigation of any event in history.

Even with ordinary house fires evidence is collected and an investigation is performed in order to determine the cause, especially if foul play is suspected. But the WTC investigation, performed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), was at best incomplete and at worst criminally fraudulent. FEMA claim they have 13,000 and NIST employes the completely ignored the most obvious evidence and rendered it unapplicable to the National Fire Protection Association, NFPA, the nation’s standard for fire and explosion investigation.

Whole Destruction of Female Evidence

In the 9/11 disaster scene in Manhattan, dubbed “Ground Zero,” should have been transformed into a crime scene and examined as such. Instead of keeping a female victim’s attire to be used as evidence, NIST actually burned it.

Speed of Collapse

As documented by video footage, Building 7 collapsed at free-fall acceleration for a distance of more than 100 feet in just 5.6 seconds to achieve its final resting position.

The NIST report, released in August 2008, concluded that the speed of collapse was around 5.6 seconds, depending on the specific section of the building.

Thermite Inundations

Prior to the NIST investigation, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) had conducted a preliminary, non-systematic examination of the building's structural integrity. The NIST report discussed its analysis of only the remaining part of the building, excluding the area destroyed by the implosion. The report stated that the implosion of the Twin Towers showed evidence of extensive damage to the steel structure, including the use of inflatable airbags to help push the buildings into place.

High-speed photographs now show that the Twin Towers were implosion collapse structures, the result of a combination of explosives and fire. The implosion was designed to ensure that the buildings would fall inward and downward, minimizing the risk of collapse to nearby structures.

Ireland Isolated in Water Fluoridation

By David Massey, The NHI Ireland

Ireland is the only country in Europe which has never had its water fluoridation scheme voluntarily suspended or cancelled. The idea of artificially fluoridating drinking water is far from popular, even though there is a huge body of scientific evidence to support the practice. The practice has been popular across the world as a means of reducing dental caries and improving overall oral health. In Ireland, however, the idea has faced significant opposition due to concerns over the safety of the practice.

The author explains the opposition to water fluoridation in Ireland, highlighting the lack of evidence supporting the practice and the concerns over its safety. The author also provides historical context, noting that the practice has been controversial since its inception.

The conclusion of the article highlights the need for a balanced approach to water fluoridation, acknowledging both the benefits and concerns associated with the practice. The author suggests that further research is necessary to fully understand the implications of water fluoridation for public health.
THE BANK OF ENGLAND

By Anthony O’Dulnan

The first central bank

The Bank of England, The European Central Bank, sets the present interest rate for all European Union member states.

The Central Bank governs the amount of credit the private banks are allowed to handle, and how it is to be handled. It also controls the amount of money the nation can choose to use. At the center of the system lies the central bank, which is primarily responsible for the implementation of monetary policy, and the control of the money supply.

TMS is a development of the Bank of England to counter the destructive modern-day banking system that is the sole cause of the massive global debt mountains. And we need to educate many people about this issue and explain its significance in terms of the impact it has on our freedoms.

New IMF Strategy

Document Launch Of “Bancor” Global Currency

A recent strategy to launch a new currency called “Bancor” was approved by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in 2016. “Bancor” is designed to be a global currency that can be used to settle international transactions, and it is intended to be a more stable and transparent alternative to existing international currencies like the dollar and euro.

The Bancor system is based on a novel concept called the “fractal reserve banking” model, which is intended to provide a more stable and resilient system for international payments. The Bancor network is designed to be decentralized, meaning that it would not be controlled by a central authority, and this is intended to make it more resilient to attacks and other forms of manipulation.

A fractal reserve banking system is one in which the value of a unit of currency is determined by the value of all the other units of currency that are in circulation. In the Bancor system, the value of a unit of currency is determined by the value of all the other units of currency that are in circulation, and this is intended to make it more resilient to attacks and other forms of manipulation.

The Magic Isle of Guernsey

By Bill Still

There is a great deal of confusion about how money should be managed today—a so-called sovereign nation and whether anything can fit our current worldwide economic problems. I believe this confusion is deliberate and generated by those who stand to profit from the current system—a “debt-money” system—and who are killing the economy of every nation on earth.

The simple fact is that a nation’s money should be created in the public interest. Unfortunately, that is not the case today in almost every nation on earth. Money creation is given over to private banks through the deception that it is being created in the public interest by national central banks such as the Federal Reserve, Bank of England, Banque de France, Deutsche Bundesbank, etc.

Many believe that the only solution is a return to gold-backed money. I do not agree. I think this is yet another deception and I believe world monetary history proves this incontrovertibly. To me, the main point to remember is that it is not what lacks the national money that is important, what is important is Who Controls the Quantity?

Despite the nationalistic-sounding names of these central banks, don’t be deceived, they do not create money in the public interest. Every dollar, every pound, every euro is created as an interest bearing debt—a debt primarily created to—according to Fedexcontrolled by—the commercial banking community.

The real solution is two-fold:

1. Forbiddgovernment borrowing—not more national debt. Nations do not have to borrow. Nations can create their own money.

2. Forbid fractional reserve lending. This is where banks can lend out 10 to 12 times the money they actually have. Banks must go to “full-reserve lending”.

In other words, the only way to end this worldwide spiral of depression is for every nation to return to a debt-free money system. Without the money power firmly in its control no nation can really be sovereign. In fact, creating money in the public interest is the very definition of sovereignty.

Fortunately, this is not a new or radical idea. It has been used hundreds of times throughout history; and every time it has been employed, it has been attacked vociferously by the big banking class who lose profits whenever the idea of money creation in the public interest surfaces. So, this is a timeless struggle and nothing less than the survival of the human species is at stake, because the debt the current system is generating is the primary cause of the world’s hunger, poverty and misery, and it is quickly destroying sovereign democratic governments and returning humanity to a feudal-serfdom system from which it will soon be unable to escape.

Debt-free money is not difficult to understand. A simple example of debt-free money creation has been going on in the tiny island of Guernsey for 200 years. Let’s take a look.

Despite the fact that the island of Guernsey has only 30 square miles and a population of only 65,000 people and very little in the way of natural resources except cows, their per capita income is $40,000 per year, 9th highest among the 200 or so countries of the world. What gives? Guernsey has used a system since 1817 that can serve as a model for the rest of the world to use to escape the ongoing great depression that we are in now.

Despite its proximity to France, Guernsey is actually a British Crown Dependency and, to its credit, has never joined the European Union. After the Second World War, Guernsey was in dire economic straits. The island’s roads were mere tracks, only 54-inch wide. In wet weather they were virtually impassable. There was not a vehicle for hire of any kind on the island. There was no trade, nor much hope of employment among the poor. The sea was washing away large tracts of land due to the severe state of the dykes.

Guernsey, like most nations at that time (as well as today) had borrowed heavily from banks. The States Debt was £193,177 with interest charges of £2,390, but the gross national revenue of the entire island was only £5,000, leaving only a paltry £56 per annum to run the entire island. In other words, interest paid to banks consumed 80% of the GDP, thus reducing the populace to a state of pitiful serfdom.

In 1815, a Committee of well-regarded, public-spirited men was assembled to finance the building of a Public Market near the main harbor, Saint Peter Port, so the farmers could more easily sell their produce. The Committee raised new money of £5,000. In addition, fixing the dykes would cost an additional £10,000.

Further taxation of the impoverished island was impossible because borrowing the money from banks would result in even higher interest charges that could never be paid. The Committee made a historic recommendation to remedy this dire situation.

The Committee recommended that the expense should be met by the issue of States Notes of £1 Sterling to the value of £6,000 ... and that these notes will be available not only for the payment of the new market, but also for Tion Church, roads to construct, and other expenses of the States....

The Committee argued that there was little to fear because the banks already had £50,000 of their money (Notes) in circulation. As a further protection against inflation, the overly cautious States placed redemption dates on the notes of April 1817, October 1817, and April 1818. In other words these notes were good for payment of taxes and good as regular money in circulation until the expiration date was reached. At that time, the notes would no longer be legal tender and the State would destroy them.

In this manner, without increasing the States’ debt, it will be possible to finish these works, leaving sufficient money in the Exchequer for other needs.

Once the good citizens realized that these notes would work without the skinning on the gentle island, additional issues took place in 1820 and 1821. By the end of 1821, £100,000 of States’ Notes were in circulation, all created without debt.

It was the most advantageous method of meeting debts, from the point of view both of the public and the States finances. Indeed, the public seemed to realize this fact, and, far from being averse to taking the notes, they sought them out eagerly.

The citizenry clearly understood that these Guernsey Notes were clearly government financing in the public interest. They also realized that if there was no money inflation as at least it was better than no money at all, and at least they would all share the inflation equally.

In 1824, another £15,000 notes were issued for the markets, and in 1825 £20,000 to erect Elizabeth College and certain other schools.

By 1829, £48,000 worth of Guernsey debt-free Notes was in circulation, and by 1837, over £55,000.

In the Billet d’Elat it was a frequent subject for congratulation; and it was stated over and over again in the minutes of those times that without the issue of States’ notes, important public works, such as roads and buildings could not possibly have been carried out. Yet by means of the States’ issue, not only were these works accomplished, but also the island was not a penny in debt in interest.

Indeed, the improvements had stimulated the flow of visitors to the island, and with increased trade, the island enjoyed its newfound prosperity.

In 1826, however, the first signs of opposition by the banking community began. A complaint was lodged with the British Prime Minister that Guernsey had the right to issue debt-free notes. However the Guernsey (also known as the “States”) Financial Committee pointed out that there was no justification for so doing and the matter was closed.

The next year, 1827, surprise, surprise, a new commercial bank opened, called “Old Bank”. They were printing up £250,000 in notes in such a manner that the island became flooded with money. Soon, Guernsey feared that inflation would set in—or worse still, with their own debt-free money experiment would be blamed for the inflation. So a Committee was appointed to confer with the banks. What went on in that meeting of minds to this day remains a mystery. The result was that £15,000 of Guernsey Notes would be withdrawn from circulation and the government would be limited to issuing a grand total of only £40,000 of their own notes. This agreement remained in force until World War I.

In the wake of World War I, the banks came under severe restriction on how much money they could issue. All bank money was being directed towards the war effort. But Guernsey was under no such restriction, probably because its experiment was unique, and perhaps forgetful.

Guernsey made good use of her opportunity. By the end of the war, in 1918, Guernsey had issued £41,900, and by 1921 this had increased to £542,965. Today, private bank notes no longer exist. British money circulates side by side with States Notes.

Naturally, there is a greater demand for the States Notes; no sane citizen of Guernsey wishes to have his notes increased to pay debt when the States is solvent. In essence: If the States Notes, £100,000 of States Note money, about £175,000, cost the States only £450 for printing and handling. A dime of the tax payer’s money is lost to the government about £1,383 annually. So can you blame the Guernsey taxpayers for preferring their own money? In a word, they would value the benevolent financial system they pay hardly any income tax.

During the entire experiment in Guernsey, the government has not at any time been under threat of inflation from the creation of States Notes. At all times, the States were very careful to issue as much money as was demanded by their ability and requirements.

In other words they carefully controlled the quality of their money in circulation.

Any visitor to Guernsey is immediately impressed by the vast difference in prices between what is chargeable in the States and what is chargeable in Great Britain. Thanks to the exceptionally low taxation and import duties, Guernsey enjoys low prices, high wages, and low costs of living. In fact, Guernsey can afford to leave worries about inflation to the debt-ridden mainland! Today, Guernsey remains an island of prosperity. As author John Brown puts it:

Guernsey has an income tax, but the tax is relatively low (“flat”) 20 percent, and it is simple and insolophe-free. It has no inheritance tax, no capital gains tax, and no federal debt. The government is not currently in debt. Government has not borrowed from the public since 1945, but the government itself never goes into debt. When it wants to create some public work or service, it just issues the work from its own money.
Eugenicists are clever psychopaths and we live in a world run by them. A psychopath is someone who is so callous, greedy, content, conniving, remorse, love, conscience, guilt or sympathy for fellow human beings or animals. Through eugenics, they can mimic these qualities and go undetected. They are often alsoastics. It appears there is no remedy for this type of individual. In the second generation, their eugenic atrocity, which they plan to build, almost all normal people are to be exterminated or sterilized. They call this “Man,” a slave to serve the utopia for the psychopath. This upgrading is, and has always been, called THE NEW WORLD ORDER.

Eugenicists is a big, big religion. I do hate to go there, but if this is about eugenics, it is about the super-religion of eugenics. Many eugenicists believe they are superior, who set the, the rest of us are not. They believe they are far more “evolved” than we are. We who, they dictate, they do not really need to adapt to the planet earth at all, but some of them – the benevolent dictate – choose to. Eugenicists see themselves as gods, who are different from the rest of the species of animal. They are what are now called Darwinists. In the world, the rest of us stupid animals are preventing the natural evolution of this planet by our very presence. It is the duty of the Eugenicists to stop the sluggish planetary-evolutionary development in any and every means. We, the inferiority, are a dead race. Eugenics is about the controlled conscious evolution of the planet and everything on it, which the eugenicists believe is left in an infant stage. The elite Eugenicists, our savages, controlled human beings, feel it is their duty to sort out the imperfection, which is planet earth.

Class and caste:

Eugenics has much in common with Hinduism from which it appears to have drawn many ideas. Like Hinduism, eugenics is a caste system. and people like Charles Galton Darwin, the grandson of Charles Darwin who was the half-cousin of Francis Galton who is the father of the term “eugenics”. It is a system that has been interbred with each other’s supposedly superior types to generate superior types of offspring in order to elevate their own families, for specific purposes. The caste system is a caste system of Socialists whom German National Socialists or Communist Socialists (not called “Communists”) work to perfect. The work is ending with the Darwinist bequest calling on the new Israel to stock up the stock and nourish the very live. The tool used was, and is, divide-and-rule and the Haganah. Eugenics is an ideological weapon, and the 20th and 1st centuries manifest themselves with the Anglo-American entailment upon which Nazi Germany, and particularly Dr. Joseph Goebbels, drew heavily.

Having normal emotions, the elite do not need to fall in love randomly and dilate the godhead of the master’s gene pool. The New Order now is the New Man, the New New Order. It will be a fertilizing herd-like society, in total opposition to the traditional family run through rationality in laboratories. However, this is important. The New Order will not tamper with their own superiors. The master’s pool, or alter their own genetical make-up, which would only dilute their highly-evolved godly make-up. They need intelligence and tribe. They need it as their genetic duty to do it to us. These Eugenicists see everyone, one threat, being neither garage, nor factory, nor baby in the old-fashioned way.

In the New (population-controlled) World Order, babies are all to be decanted from bottles and test tubes in the Brave New World Order. How many woman-leaders have there been? Hitler, Princess Diana, Marilyn Monroe, Michelle Obama, Mao Zedong, Pol Pot, Saddam Hussein, Mugabe and so on, how many of these were women? How many kings and emperors with women? To the Eugenicists, most women are seen as a temporary but necessary evil, a maidens in a breeding and rearing factory doing the job that those proper male (if you can call them that) should be doing by themselves through rationality and science. One question to ask in this, have the High Points of eugenics throughout history, always been, violent, god-complex, racist, jealous of the slave-making process, psychopaths, in control, freaks, heterophilies, a (term seldom used) and maybe perhaps somewhat homosexuals? You must decide!

Religion:

The question is asked, what about all the New Age Mother Earth Goddess Religion? The eugenicists are also the ones to make the naturally aggressive produces more and, even to turn them into flower children, especially those of the old, they try to help, and they will never have the same things. They will become a diluted cocktail of New Age religions and include alcoholism (or something) goon, so long as there is no God in it. In the new religion spirit and matter merge forming scientists. The white goat replaces the pitifully rotten woods.

The old religions, stripped of all their magical allure, were actually somewhat scientific in one sense. If you keep repeating the same thing over, and over, and you keep getting the same outcome, that outcome becomes a law. The old religions were about morals or natural laws, based on tried and tested experience resulting in moral guidelines to follow which made life meaningful and rewarding. Break the moral codes, the old religions, and there goes your moral standards, and all consequences whatever the religion, or lack of it. Phrases such as “you reap what you sow” and “what goes around comes around” are as old as time. However, people instantly know right from wrong. There is no longer a God to judge them. They call it the New Natural Law or Common Law. People have a basic moral conscience, it is part of our community survival makeup. So the eugenicists have, coming to considered and being staunch madmen try in every possible way to make us break every moral code, (this used to be called sin) fire-breathen with the devil, the devil has gone, and there are no consequences. This ability makes some of us laugh, but we are poor, even if we are god-like. Good and evil to them are more energies and forces to be used in whatever way a god chooses “you can’t make an omelet without breaking eggs”. This is how they justify their domination of the earth. This top-down lack of empathy is marketed down to society as moral relativism. However, if good and evil are neutralized, then evil has triumphed over good and good people suffer extinguishing.

For most normal people, if one spends long enough in a nature, the New Age also has to be man, thrusts into the urban Darwinist indoctrination to fall away, something stirs within them. When you feel every blade of grass, blade of sand and every individual cell to be unique in itself and unique within the group, and yet things are the same, something awakens within you. It becomes quite impossible for you to step into the group, and the gods can build the next stage of their utopia and create the New “Man” in science.

Now, the wash-off is just that, an infinite sky. You can join the starry-dons in any way that your imagination chooses, but the elite happened to draw up the signs of the zodiac, and surrounded their business plan for the future of humanity and the world. It has been saddled with hoodooed, magic and mystery. Sorry to disappoint you but the "mystery" is nothing more, and nothing less than a born old long hand that it was projected into the future on order, to build the New “Man” to “perfect” that which was already imperfect. We are “set on the potter’s wheel”, as the High Freemasons of the natural laws and God, were not destroyed, or faded off. We and our offspring are to be repeatedly upgraded or forever being installed with plant-like appendages. They will not want to hear of it. We must sneak into their master’s creation, continually being upgraded through time. This open-ended upgrading is called "The New Earth Charter". Our future’s and the future environments we are to live in have been, and written in a starry sky and measured balance sheet rolling above the earth. The eugenicists are given this as a gift. The opportunity to be able to create something out of nothing, to do as they please, to make the changes possible, to leg of them to create order out of that elite-created chaos. "Odo ah Choo", Order out of Chaos.

Elle Education as opposed to commoner propaganda:

We may ask who educates the eugenicists. Well first, they learn of their imagined superiority from their parents, who learned it from their slaves, who learned it from before them, who were the gods. They say, the divine role in life is to dominate the planet as it should be done. With the knowledge that the poor elites’ godhead lies in the fact that they own and dominate, the global financial system to which all of us are commoners, slaves, kept in our rightful place so we can circulate their money. We could not know this day, if we were to be sent to the stars, by the gods, the gods have ordained it, and that the gods are not obsessed with us, just they are obsessed with the good, and have double or triple-lined them. They say, the coming event of Hopkins and common blood infecting their superior bloodline. Massaggera applies to mixing races, but it also applies to all of being, the godhead in life is in common with us inferior animals in the Darwinist bequest. The hierarchical doctrine of Karma is used to keep the untouchables and commoners, that is, the non-infectable people, in the breeds. This propaganda is being pushed worldwide. Eugenics is under nymos.

"Let him who will be deceived be a liar!" is the name of the game, in the United States of the New World Society. Eugenics is a religion of deception, but the deception is from the common feeling of being more clever, logical and cunning a eugenicist is, the closer he is, to being secretly initiated into godhood. This initiation they call The Apotheosis. Elite are taught this, commoners are not. Love or companion does not enter into it at all. It is about deception and superior selective breeding.

Normal people do not bother to think about these big ideas that are so ambiguous and pressing on our minds. However, it is a grave error to ignore the mass of the commoner much neglected and clever psychopath. They are dangerous. THEY ARE generally modifying us deliberately. Having been seduced by the snobbery and sending of science into us, explaining the mother and father, and the family, are the ones who are sovereign, reducing our IQ, dehumanizing us, destroying the chances of becoming a meaningful way to involve us, so-called "entertainment" and the "propaganda known as an education" as Bertrand Russell chose to call it. They are eliminating the sanctity of life. We are nothing! We are are dumb animals. They have divided us and turned us at one another, training us to spy on eachother. We no longer even trust ourselves. We depend on "experts" to tell us how we should breathe, how little we should breathe and what to inhale. Genetic modification is just that, changing something. It is not creating something out of nothing. Only a god can do that. God. Only they created money and government out of nothing.

Money, Piggybacks and Government:

Money does not exist. It is a fallacy, an illusion, a deception. It is a confidence game, we are being fleeced. Therefore, that does not exist except in the headspace of those that create money. Government is another artificial creation. Out of nothing that we seem to believe in. It is a fallacy. Money buys and sells books, authors. Money raises empires and money destroys them and makes us to grow the money. Mann means, acquisition of money, cultural failure, cultural disaster.

entertainment and the legal system.
We live in a corporatist society which has been built up through the efforts of eugenicists. They run it. They pay us to do it, to do this to us and we are the subjects. The main benefit of such a system, so long as they themselves are not threatened, is that it induces the feeling of security that we are part of a tribe unto ourselves and they control the diet-based money system. When they want a new civilization, they will simply move the money offshore and let that civilization collapse. Of course, they will have moved all their opulence, their mansions, clubs, confident palaces, mansions and money into the new civilization to make sure that civilization up first.

The same ideologically driven elite families shift their empire from Greece to Rome and eventually to British and America, leaving only the debased and destabilized to stay as an empire to the next generation.

Eugenics is part of this larger movement. In fact, many of its early proponents were also eugenicists.

The movement came about as a result of the Jacquard brothers, who invented the first automatic loom, which was later used in the mass production of textiles. This led to the rise of industrial capitalism and the exploitation of workers.

The movement has been supported by various organizations, including the American Eugenics Society, the National优Youth League, and the National Pioneers League. These organizations have been responsible for spreading eugenic principles and promoting eugenic practices.

The movement has been used to justify racism, sexism, and other forms of prejudice. It has also been used to support capitalism and imperialism.

In the 20th century, eugenics became increasingly popular in the United States, and it was used to justify the forced sterilization of people of color and people with disabilities.

The movement has been rebranded as
"bioethics," but it continues to have a profound impact on American society.

Fascism Gilson first coined the term eugenics, and when we analyze all the various concepts that have been concocted and brought to the fore, we see that they are the same. The eugenicists, the conservative politicians, and the capitalists have been working together to bring about a civilization that is more capitalist and less democratic.

The eugenicists have been using their wealth and power to advance their agenda, and they have been successful in achieving their goals.

The eugenicists have been able to pass laws that allow for the sterilization of people of color and
people with disabilities, and they have been able to use the courts to prevent people from opposing their demands.

Libya in Washington's Greater Middle East Project

By F. William Engdahl

For those who do not believe in coincidence, it's notable that on March 19, 2011 the Obama Administration ordered the military bombardment attack on Libya to create a 'no fly zone' to protect innocent civilians and on March 19, 2003.

The No Fly strikes were begun under US command with suspicion hasting following the UN Resolution. To date the attacks have been led by US, British and French forces and warships. A storm of Tomahawk cruise missiles and GBU-12 Paveway II aerial explosions has been turned down on undisguised Libyan targets with reports of many civilian deaths. No end is in sight as yet.

Eight years earlier to the day, the Bush Administration began its Operation Shock and Awe, the military and political occupation of Iraq, allegedly to prevent a military and ideological war of mass destruction with which never existed as was later confirmed. The invasion moved more than a decade of illegal No Fly Zone operations over Iraqi airspace by the same trio—USA, Britain and France.

Far more important than any possible numerology games a supernatural Pentagon might or might not be playing is the ultimate agenda behind the nominal regime details that Washington has ignited under the banner of the protection of human rights across the Islamic world since 2003.

With Washington's exuding of enormous pressure on other NATO member states to take formal command of the US-led bombing of Libya, no one would question what name, in order to give Washington a fig leaf that the bombing's shifts appearances following the Pentagon's central role via AFRICOM in declaring the military campaign, bringing the entire upheaval sweeping across North African and Middle East Islamic countries is largely a fig leaf, writing more like the early consent of a World War I, one that not NATO members hint is expected to last decades.

As with World War II and World War I, this one too would be vast in scope, the launching and expansion of what David Rockefeller and George Bush the past have called a 'new world order'.

Gaddafi's 'real crime' Unlike Tunisia or Egypt where a halfway credible argument could be made that the population was suffering from expediency of a regime, Gaddafi in Libya, officially called Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, had very different reasons.

There, according to Africanists I have spoken to, direct knowledge, Libya enjoyed the highest living standard on the Continent. Gaddafi did not stay in power to continue his career, services, education and fuel were state-subsidized in the most profligate way, infant mortality rate and highest life expectancy of all Africa. When he raised the price of oil (not mindless like today's) the oil price went up, but it did not. Oil revenues, making Libya a vast oil rich country.

If anything, the footprint of your typical tyrant less than 5% of the population is uncommon, a figure lower than in the United States. In response to the rising food prices of recent months, Gaddafi took care to absorb all taxes on food and a lower percentage of people pay based on their poverty line than in the Netherlands. Gaddafi calls this his 'socialist democracy. It is secular and not theocratic, dynamic and the unbelievably Sunni base in the population.

Why is the United States so opposed to Gaddafi? Clearly he is being simply "not in the same boat program." He does not speak the English language. He is repeatedly and not without grounds that he deeply respects Western culture and Western sites. He has consistently tried to forge an independent voice for an African that is increasingly being lost in the Western world. In 1999 he initiated creation of the African Union, the model for the United Nations and in 2005 he strengthened the international voice of African countries. On March 26, 2006, at the annual summit in 2006 he appealed for creation of a new financial institution to oversee the economic growth of the entire continent and the overall economic growth of African countries. And he has nothing to do with the Afghan and Iraqi wars.

Gaddfai is a thorn in Washington's side for other reasons though. He says that the UN hijackers were trained in the US, yet he also helped build an independent voice for African states not controlled by either the US or the colonial powers, the United States of Africa.

When all the Western media demonizing Gaddafi around that time, it was the last generation of moderate socialist pan-Africanist still in power. After Egypt's Nasser and Iraq's Saddam Hussein have been eliminated, and Syria has aligned with Iran.

So long as he remain, Libya poses an embarrassing economic alternative to Washington's free market globalization template which it is now desperate to impose on the one billion peoples of the Islamic world from Morocco across Africa and the Middle East to Afghanistan. For the US it is a question of survival of the American Century, or what the quintessential叫 New American Century, of the future survival of a pole and its allies who are states and war and chaos as its own economy disintegrates more by the day.

Amer Mouss and dual-use technologies

The launch of Operation Odyssey Dawn, the coordinated US-led-French military attack on Libya following the UN Security Council resolution, was a complete shock since once Egyptian diplomat Ali Arar, who had been in London for months to convince the US President appearing to be weak and a bit 'wobbly' about Libya he would be, the President who ordered evangelist走in the war against Libya, to be secretary of state in the US administration. The then US ambassador to Libya, the formerilhaudar, headed the US delegation to Libya. Gaddafi, despite the fact that no US lives were threatened, was on the road to being isolated, a fact that could be avoided if he was essentially an internal Libyan Libyan up against an established head of state and Gaddafi's Libyan National. Gaddafi's Libya has never threatened an armed attack on Libya for an intervention in the internal affairs of a sovereign state, prohibited by Article 2(7) of the UN Charter unless expressly authorized by the Security Council as essential for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Beyond this, there is no assurance that an intervention, if undertaken, would lessen the suffering of the Libyan people or bring about a regime more respectful of human rights and dedicated to democratic participation.

What I am mainly describing here in the Libyan debate are three kinds of policy fails: The exclusion of international law, the US and the United Nations from relevance to national debates about international uses of force. The absence of respect for the dynamics of self-determination in societies of the South. The refusal to heed the ethical and political appetite for a post-colonial model to refrain from any use of force and is becoming increasingly multi-polar.

Notable in the latest Washington narration to war was the lack of any independent verification of what had become the universal image of a Gaddafi ordering his air force to shoot down any united armament. CNN staged camera shots don't qualify as neutral in this instance, nor BBC. Ibrahim Shafi, Libyan TV journalist and government's Salvation of Libyan speaker, made the charge against Gaddafi literally while standing in front of the US White House. No one bothered to independently confirm if it was accurate.

More notable, once the Arab League agreed to back a Libyan No Fly option, opposition within the UN Security Council collapsed, giving Washington its desired cover of a 'non-interventional support for its desired military action.

The Security Council vote was 10-0 with five major counties abstaining, including Russia and China, who have veto powers, along with India, Germany and Brazil. The US, France and Britain pushed for a speedy approval. Convincingly ignored in the ever no-seem mainstream western media was the relevant fact that the direct neighbor of Libya, Algeria, Tunisia and the entire African Union voted against the No Fly Zone. If you aren't singing from the same sheet of music, you don't exist... Libya...

Nominally, the resolution for a no-fly zone was requested by the Libyan rebel Transitional National Council and the Arab League. In reality, as former Indian diplomat M. K. Bhadrakumar noted, "The plain truth is that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Union are using this as an instrument provided they get a say to the United Nations Security Council. The Western powers had earlier mentioned the Arab League to speak in the name of the African Union in the same breath as representing 'regional opinion.' Now it seems the African Union isn't so important—its become embarrassing. African leaders are proving to be tough nut to crack compared to Arab playboys.

Kuwait and Turkey, added, "The Arab League resolution was rammed through by Amer Mouss, Secretary-General of the Arab League who hopes to succeed Hosni Mubarak as Egypt's next president. Arab leaders, who depend upon the US for their continued existence, were not hard to persuade."

Mouss, a savvy survivor, knows he stands no chance to be President if he doesn't have Washington's backing, covert or overt.

‘Coalition of the unwilling’

The entire Washington manipulation left its backers, a de facto ‘coalition of the unwilling,’ realizing they had been double-crossed by Washington. As such as the relentless bombing of civilian as well as the support of extremist Libyan armed civilians. CNN staged camera shots don't qualify as neutral in this instance, nor BBC. Ibrahim Shafi, Libyan TV journalist and government's Salvation of Libyan speaker, made the charge against Gaddafi literally while standing in front of the US White House. No one bothered to independently confirm if it was accurate.

Russia's Putin called the US action a new ‘crass’ against Libya and the Islamic world, but not without reason China denounced the US intervention. Unfortunately, both countries have been silent when it could have counted against the UN Security Council since when they abstained, perhaps out of fear of alienating the powerful oil producer countries of the Arab League.

Realizing that they had been tricked big time by Washington, London, Paris, and who of whom had apparently planned the military action against Libya beforehand, any UN or Arab League vote, European NATO members and others including NATO member Turkey immediately began their vehement protest.

Germany withdrew its military support equipment from the region over this seemingly compromise of a UN resolution. For six years, the US did not observe the UN resolution of 1990 or 1991, which banned all military sales to Iran and Iraq until 2003. Iraq invaded Kuwait in August 1990 and the US charged the US and UK with their invasion.

As of writing this Washington had even less international backing for its military adventure than even in the 2003 Iraq invasion.

For its part British government ministers were calling for assassinations of Gaddafi, starting that the Middle East and North African war could go on some ‘30 years.'

Others made the comparison to the Twentieth Century upheavals and dismantling of European empires that made way ultimately for an American Century. Those upheavals, which lasted from 1914 to 1918 and 1945 were remembered in history books as World War I and World War II—indeed just one long thirty year war for global hegemony.

As the eventual ‘winner’ of that mammoth conflict, United States cities named after them around the immensely powerful Rockefeller family and proclaimed who ultra-left publisher Henry Lee in a 1941 editorial handed an "American Century." That American Century is now in dangerous decline, a protracted death agony of decay and self-destruction that has been going on since 1971, symbolized by President Richard Nixon's Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger and the Bretton Woods monetary treaty and break from the US dollar and gold, a fatal turn.

Another war for all!

Yes, Libya's oil is indeed a factor behind the British, French and US war fervor.
The Scottish National Party: Independently Orwellian Xenomorphs!

By The Ghost of William Wallace

When I was young and naive I foolishly thought that the Scottish National Party were the best hope for my country in light of repeated and hugely expensive votes for a Labour party across Scotland only to be served up with more Conservative thieves in London. However, it didn’t take me too long to realize that they were all thieves and that none of them had my best interests at heart.

That hold true for the SNP on this day when their open border manifesto is on show in their latest propaganda leaflet for the recent elections in Scotland where they have taken themselves for the patrons to the Scots with whom they have never been closer. Alex Salmond formed a rebel player in the 2015 campaign for the SNP. This created a division in the SNP with the existence of the SNP (Scottish Nationalists)

But the real insult to the intelligence is the claim that Scotland can be an independent nation in the European Union. Haven’t they read the Lisbon Treaty? Apparent not, but they claim that with independence is gained through the ballot box we’ll still be a member of the EU. Does anyone see the parodies of height?

To quote: ‘Scotland is already part of the EU and would remain so after independence’

Would appear that the SNP don’t quite understand the ramifications of the rapprochement of the 2018 Referendum that is the EU on the fraudulent rapprochement of the Lisbon Treaty after the Irish were told to vote, and although they’d better get a right time this or their economy would collapse.

Hmm… They must have voted ‘No’ because the economy has collapsed. But they’re not sure only for that vote to be comprehensively turned by a ‘Yes’ by unscrupulous and devious methods which every dictator on earth would be proud of. Might eat your heart out! I know, I was there and I’m heartbroken but another quote which caught my eye was this little gem:

“As a full member state, Scotland will finally have a voice at the top table in Europe.”

Unfortunately I think that might just be Willie MacDuff, the waker, asking Yar Barrow how many bottles of the finest brandy he wastes in his weighty, tax payer funded, 5 course dinner.

However, as a separate nation I reckon the Scottish people should then have the right of a referendum to withdraw from the European Union because it wasn’t our own government who ever signed up to it so I can’t quite see how the SNP can justify the claim that we’ve always been part of the European Treaty? Apparent not, but they claim that after independence is gained through the ballot box we’ll still be a member of the EU. Does anyone see the parodies of height?

It would further hold true that the English, Welsh and Northern Irish should be allowed their referendum on the same grounds. The government of the UK will no longer exist and it is that government which signed up to the European Union and not the Scottish nations will be a part of the EU if Scottish Independence should materialise.

This is almost worth voting for, but as readers of this paper know by now; if voting changed anything it would be made illegal!

The Electric Universe
by Wallace Thornhill

Imagine that electric power has not been invented. Picture the impact on our society, its science and technology if we had not left the steam power, gaslight and horse and buggy transport. That may be unimaginable from our modern perspective, but it is the incredible state of affairs in modern astronomy and cosmology. Nowhere can one find in any encyclopaedia or science textbook any reference to electrical power in astronomy!

But Nature is not known for doing things the hard way. If we find it most effective to use electrical power to drive motors and to heat and to light us, why would Nature ignore electrical power and turn to the fossil fuels? To the universe—gravity—to build and power galaxies and stars? And when I state that gravity is feeble, how about one trillion, trillion, trillion times weaker than the electrical field? It doesn’t do so at zero to anything you are likely to meet in the real world. That’s why it is possible to jump into the air against the gravitational pull of the entire massive Earth.

Invoking such a pathetic driving force to explain the most concentrated sources of energy in the universe led scientists to invent near-infinite concentrations of mass—‘black holes’ and neutron stars. They did this by repeating an old mathematics bowing down by the gravity) to arrive at infinity!

This is the kind of error that has pervaded theoretical physics since mathematics usurped authority from natural philosophers early in the 20th century. Mathematical logic can be faultless, but the results drawn from it may or may not be real. Definitively not. Confusion of language and metaphor abounds. We are told we exist in a four-dimensional “fabric of space-time”—meant to convey that we both begin with the letter ‘m’. That is the kind of trap that mathematicians fall into but philosophers should see. So the ‘edge of the universe’ or those extreme cases of what is a colossal waste. The equation also tells us that Einstein was wrong when he postulated Maxwell’s ‘ether’. Light does not require a medium to ‘wave’. Einstein’s ‘photon’ is imaginary.

And in the realm of cosmology no one seems concerned that restricting the force of gravity to Einstein’s speed limit of c restricts spiral galaxies and a stable solar interior. The ‘we stand on the verge of a vast cosmical discovery such as Newton’s hypothesis of gravity and as much as we can compare with’. In 1868 the American, Elias Loomis, proposed that there are circulating round the sun powerful energy waves, which may possibly be the source of the sun’s light. And 1889, the Swedish astronomer Sir William Huggins presented the Royal Society of London with his electrical model of the sun. The ‘grandest display of terrestrial electrical disturbance must be altogether impossible in comparison with the electrical changes which must go on in the sun’s atmosphere the result of which is a vast act. The sun’s atmosphere is a plasma and the earth is a conductor. The ‘sun is a giant plasma sphere... Surely it is not too much to say that our terrestrial experience of lightning and of auroral fails to supply us with any adequate basis for a true conception of the electric forces in motion and the origin of the sun’s heat’.

But in 1926, Sir Arthur Eddington wrote in his enormously influential work, The Internal Constitution of the Stars, ‘No source of energy is of any avail if it is not capable of deep interior of the star. It is not enough to provide for the external radiation of the star. We must provide for the maintenance of the high internal temperature, without which the star would collapse.’ A simple gravitating gas model appeals to mathematicians because it makes the problem, in Eddington’s words, ‘a simple thing’. He dismissed all of the complex phenomena on and above the photosphere as mere details and simply assumed that the Sun’s photosphere is the surface of the Sun. But if the photosphere is an electrical discharge, it will sit at considerable height above the electrode, or surface of the Sun. But it can simply produce a plasma sphere that will neutralize any material. Mass is the measure of electromagnetic energy stored in matter. Measuring the mass of the Sun cannot tell us that it is mostly hydrogen!

Meanwhile, in many ways, a spectacular information, the science of electric discharge in an ionized gas, called plasma, was just beginning. Astrophysicists had already travelled a long way down the detour of ‘deductive mathematical physics’ and refused to start over with empirical plasma physics. They insisted on treating plasma as a magnetized gas, which keeps their mathematics tractable while ignoring the fact that magnetism cannot exist in plasma without electric currents and discharge effects. This error deeper makes it, it doesn’t need at a waste of time, talent and taxpayers’ money. Big bang cosmology has been entirely non-predictive while receiving all of the funding.

Today there is a small discipline of plasma cosmology, which is recognized by the largest professional organization in the world, the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE). Plasma cosmologists have electric circuit models of galaxies and star formation that are tested by supercomputer simulations and verified by experiment—something that big bang cosmologists are unable to do. They have many successful predictions, which is the hallmark of a good theory, but since it is not an autonomous ‘church’, astronomers generally do not attend the meetings.

Plasma cosmology is a leap forward in understanding the universe. However, it is so impeded by unexamined assumptions from the past. Electrical star birth has been recently observed. But once they are born, plasma cosmology sees the stars as Edgards envisaged them, as isolated self-immolating bodies. And the questions of the real nature of matter interactions and geometry is unvisited.

What of the earlier electric Sun inspiration? In 1944 the Scottish astrophysicist and lightning researcher, Charles Bruce, using his own equipment (an uncalibrated camera) of the Sun as a form of global lightning and the moon chromosphere as a luminous low-pressure electric discharge phenomenon. But since the origin of lightning on Earth is unknown, he did challenge the internal nuclear energy model of stars. However, he influenced a US engineer, Ralph Jurgenes, who confronted our ignorance head-on when he wrote in 1972, ‘The modern astrophysical concept that the sun’s energy to thermal reactions deep in the solar interior is conducted by nearly every observable aspect of the sun’. For example, where a sunspot has the bright photosphere and we can see dark energy by it, the plasma sphere of the photosphere is brighter and hotter than the photosphere if energy were trying to escape from within the Sun. Then there is the unexplained millions of degrees hot corona outside the Sun and a hypothetical tens of millions of degrees thermocore core inside the Sun. Siting between them is an efficiently ‘stone cold’ photosphere of 6,500 degrees! Such a model is physically impossible! But the relentless pursuit of the mirage of fusion power “like the Sun”

The ‘Electric Universe’ amalgamates plasma cosmology with electric stars and a simple model of resonant matter structure in which interactions involve the near-instantaneous electric force. Cause and effect are thereby united in quantum mechanics. Gravity and magnetism are simply dipolar electric forces caused by the distortion of matter in an electric field. The result is an interdisciplinary cosmology that reaches the sciences and has a profound message of a connected universe. The Electric Universe paints a broad canvas of the science of the future.

The Technological System

by Vince White

There are three main reasons why a person cannot comprehend reality. One is that he simply lacks conceptual ability and can’t abstract the necessary factual model in his head. This cat is plain stupid. Another guy, for one reason or another is in a state of willful denial and refuses to see what’s right in front of his nose. This cat is ignorant. For the third guy it may be that a certain idea just never occurred to him or he has never been presented with it so he’s simply in a state of unknowing. This cat is learning. Which brings me to why I wrote this article.

The fact of the matter is that the elite use technology to further their evil ends. I contend that it is the technological system that is an evil system. In fact, the technological system is a product of the technological elite and can therefore be redefined to be neutral and cold and abstract and objective like science. But technology isn’t science although they often get around the way around.

Technology is the use of science. Technology isn’t the science itself. It is the use of the mechanical, technical, or industrial arts. Technology is governed by technical necessity. It has its own set of necessities which is independent of science. It is a Harry Ford’s automobile plant or a modern chicken factory. Technology is the idler power; creates independent ideas; is sent down from the heavens through specialization and always seeks to maintain its purity and augment itself. Regardless of whether or not it is good and not the bad. But you can’t and shouldn’t blame the technology itself. It has to be blaming the people at the top of the pyramid. It is the technological system.

Technology is not the permanent water which human beings use to live a survival system which sustains human life. The technological system is the always a Faustian bargain to which we are all too quick to surrender. The technological system is the second, second of the elite who are both the driving force behind the technological system and is an evil system. The technological system is an evil system. It is run by the elite and is a product of the technological elite. It is the technological system and is an evil system.

The second reason the elite are using technology is that they are the technological elite and are the architects of the technological system which has an agenda. It’s difficult to ascribe living qualities to technology because technology is an aggregate of things which are neutral and cold and abstract and objective like science. But technology isn’t science although they often get around the way around.

Technology is the use of science. Technology isn’t the science itself. It is the use of the mechanical, technical, or industrial arts. Technology is governed by technical necessity. It has its own set of necessities which is independent of science. It is a Harry Ford’s automobile plant or a modern chicken factory. Technology is the idler power; creates independent ideas; is sent down from the heavens through specialization and always seeks to maintain its purity and augment itself. Regardless of whether or not it is good and not the bad. But you can’t and shouldn’t blame the technology itself. It has to be blaming the people at the top of the pyramid. It is the technological system.

As a result, you see, technology is marauding it is marauding the world. But you can’t and shouldn’t blame the technology itself. It has to be blaming the people at the top of the pyramid. It is the technological system.

So you see, resistance is useless. It’s useless because ENVIRONMENT is always stronger than willpower. It’s a fact. And the modern environment is the technological system not the environment of nature. And you will obey it. Why? Because you have already.

At this point, something may have happened a you may not want to know. I don’t want to sell you in any case. If you don’t see what I’m saying, then I’m going to sell you. If you see what I’m saying, then I’m going to sell you. I’m not going to sell you. I’m going to sell you.

The good news is that you read this article. It’s not an accident. It’s a technological accident that looks like a shopping centre and I am not asking for your donations. I’m just a guy offering a technological solution to your technological problems. The good thing is that the technological system is not in decline. It is still in the cold, unless it senses that you just get incarcerated or eliminated. But if you want to go to Mars and hunt the shoots and live raised it’s unlikely to come close or for unpard. What? I hear you say? I don’t do that. I just do that. I don’t do that. I don’t do that. I don’t do that. I don’t do that. I don’t do that.

I believe the good news is that those who want freedom will always find a way. Most will mean and gone and compliant and sell their money to Asa Jones who will buy them a bigger raise. Others will buy their Lockheed P-38 and ride around on the weekend off work and pretend they are Peter Fonda.

See, there is no faking an elite. You are in a state of willful denial. The elite run our country and have their slaves and the slaves need their masters and the benevolence of all the functions of technology and that is the New World Order pyramid. The actions of the elite at the capstone are not autonomous actions. They are no more at the top of the pyramid than the slaves are on the bottom. McVeigh’s no longer want to build caves and want to shift production to Do-It-Yourself Macamé Kit’s. Everything in the system is contained and structured. The technological system is the pyramid with its cap and base and the top.

And I believe that this system is out of control. I suspect the real reason conspiracy theories like to believe there’s a shadowy elite really trying to run the system is because it is that believable. That’s one is in control. The captain is out to lunch and some mad HAL computer is running the system. A set of unaccountable, unknown forces leading humanity uncontrollably and that is the system. The is something human, even psychopathic and unsound is better than nothing.

Current events form future trends as Gerald Celente says. Well, as technique continues to evolve, it will undoubtedly become more evident and human beings will suffer more and more. It’s not the Franklin school of decades ago that are responsible for the breakdown of society. For the breakdown of the family, of religion. Of community. Of man and woman. It’s not a technology, it’s technology. This man today is emancipated and the woman emancipated because that’s what the man demands of the woman. Imagine that.

There are plenty of foreign countries which still which have horrible dictatorial regimes where people are still God fearing and family oriented. They’re just a little bit more technologically advanced. They don’t have a technological infrastructure. I want to hear in 1969 and travel to visit. It is now 50 years and the system complete with6 cameras and start watching your neighbour. It’s not against the law.

There are no easy answers to the technological system which is enslaving you. But as always, there are always answers. The human will always have been and it always will. The question is are you willing to pay the price?
The Real George Bernard Shaw & H.G. Wells – Fabian Socialists and Haitian Advocates of Mass Murder

canning through the Irish papers one morning last year I came across this piece on George Bernard Shaw in times with Irish Examiner. These are supposedly competing publications but both carry word for word, this sickening tribute to an intimate whom has been mythologized and portrayed as one of Ireland's finest.

http://www.independent.ie/national-news/shaw-pictures-tell-a-whole-new-story-2329090.htm

This disgusting creature was in his day an ardent supporter of Mussolini and Hitler and a founding member of the Fabian Society.

http://www.fabians.org.uk/

The Fabian Society would claim that they are a purely socialist organisation. They were co-founded by Shaw's friend Lady Astor. David Cameron, the 'conservative' leader and Prime Minister of Britain is also a member as well as being related by marriage into the Astor family. Confidence?

I'm not going to waste my time going through the entire snivel to say that is an insult to the average person who, if they spent 5 minutes researching Shaw would find a different pericod that this sickening portrait of a supposed genius of his day.

What I want to show you here is the depaved mind of a 'man' who thought and stated quite clearly what he thought of the ordinary person on the street far removed from his elitist circle of psychopaths.

The word 'psychopath' has been used in many articles on The Sovereign Independent website and others to describe an attribute of politicians, royalty and the wider aristocracy which they all seem to share to one degree or another. George Bernard Shaw is no different. The only difference between Shaw and others of his ilk is that he was a man of many words who had trouble containing himself when it came to his views on humanity. Here are just a few examples:

EXTERRMINATION OF THE "SOCIALLY INCOMPATIBLE"

"The notion that persons should be safe from extermination as long as they do not commit willful murder, or levy war against the Crown, or kidnap, or throw tar, is not only to limit social responsibility unnecessarily, and to privilege the large range of intolerable misconduct that lies outside them, but to divert attention from the essential justification for extermination, which is always incorrigible social incompatibility and nothing else." Source: George Bernard Shaw, "On the Rock," (1933), Preface.

USE OF GAS CHAMBERS

"We should find ourselves committed to killing a great man with whom we shall have to live, and to leave living a great many people with whom we are present likely to have to get rid of all ideas about capital punishment..."

A part of eugenics politics would finally land us in an extensive use of the lethal chambers. It is not many people would have to be put out of existence simply because it wastes other people's time to look after them.

KILLING THOSE "UNFIT TO LIVE"

"The moment we face it frankly we are driven to the conclusion that the community has a right to put a price on the right to a life in it... If people are fit to live, let them live under decent human conditions. If they are not fit to live, kill them in a decent human way. It is any wonder that some of us are driven to prefer the lethal chamber as the solution for the hard cases of people which are present made the excuse for dragging all the other cases down to their level, and the only solution that will create a sense of full moral responsibility in modern populations?"

These are not isolated statements made at some point in his life. These statements and many others of the same ilk have been made decades consistently and repetitively. Here's another:

"Under Socialism, you would not be allowed to be poor. You would be forcibly fed, clothed, lodged, taught, and employed whether you liked it or not. It were dismissed that you had not character and industry enough to be worth all this trouble; you might possibly be executed in a kindly manner; but whilst you were permitted to live, you would have to live well."

In the video below, in a clip from a highly recommended documentary called 'The Soviet Story' you see and hear Shaw clearly state his murderous ideology:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=feature_embedded&v=hQvsFZMU

KRQ

Another myth surrounds H.G. Wells who along with Shaw advocated mass extermination of the 'unfit' as he and his sick friends thought of people of a lower social group than themselves. Here are a few quotes from this maniac:

AGREEMENT WITH GALTON

"I believe that if a canvass of the entire country were put to the vote in this matter, the proposition that it is desirable that the better sort of people should intermarry and have plentiful children, while the inferior sort of people should abstain from multiplication, would be carried by an overwhelming majority. They might disagree with Plato's methods, but they would certainly agree to his principle. And that is not a judgment. Mr. F. Galton has shown. He has devoted a very large amount of energy and capacity to the vivid and convincing presentation of this idea, and to its courageous propagation... Indeed, Mr. Galton has drawn up certain definite proposals. He has suggested that "noble families should collect "fine specimens," and employ these fine specimens in mental occupations of a light and comfortable sort, that will leave a sufficient portion of their energies free for the multiplication of their superior type."

Source: H.G. Wells, Mankind in the Making, Chapter 12, (1903)

CALL FOR STERILIZATION

"I believe that now and always the conscious selection of the best for reproduction will be impossible; that to propose to it is to display a fundamental misunderstanding of what individuality implies. The way of nature has always been to slay the hindmost, and there is still no other way, unless we can prevent those who would become the hindmost being born. It is in the sterilization of failure, and not in the selection of successes for breeding, that the real hope of an improvement of the human stock lies."

Source: H.G. Wells, Mankind in The Making, Chapter 12, (1903)

The last quote should strike terror into the hearts and minds of ordinary men and women. The 'New Republic' as Wells names it is now branded 'The New World Order'.

Do we as rational thinking human beings really believe that man's treatment of other man is not justifiable under any circumstances or do we start to question what is and always has been the dream of tyrants for millennia?

At what point do we start to question phrases such as 'man is a canary on the earth' or the whole 'greening' agenda which is THE key ideology to bring in EUGENICS?

Even the psychopathic Charles Manson is being put forward as a 'climate guru' using the same slogans and phrases as used by one of the world's premier liars on the subject, namely Al Gore.

Until we as a species on this planet understand that there is a world agenda to drastically reduce world population, by a power cabal outside any government, by any means, whether through poisoned food and water, vaccinations, chemical spraying of the atmosphere and other means, we are absorbed by the official news bodies every day and finally mass murder of the 'unfit', this agenda will steamroller ahead unabated.

BBC 4 recently promoted sterilization of the 'unfit' on the national airwaves. That should make the hairs on the back of every neck stand up. Of course the headlines on those news are for the chopping block.

Join the dots folks because failure to do so will ultimately fail the human race and life on this planet will be hellish for our children and future
The British Green Party: What is it acheiving for our environment?

By Joe Scandal
Environment correspondent.

Embarassingly, I was once a member of the local Green Party. Acting locally and thinking globally, I thought I’d take a look at their local election special blurb.

Let’s actually.

There are plenty of pre-election promises in there, for hopes for independently funded voices, for broken communities, guarantees for remote services and throwing about more fraudulent money. From a fraudulently moneyed system that magically dupes money out of thin air backed up by the press and our grandchildren’s slavery.

The Election Special Green News has been paid for by private donations, doesn’t say who. Fundraising and small business sponsorship. As an ex-Green Party member, having met most of the various election candidates I am very fond of them. But I wonder how this promise being kept.

trafic congestion.

“We’ve been brainwashed, bulldozed off our land and squeezed into the overcrowded cities. The Transition Towns team promises more of the same, we are battery farmed chickens.

Fat chance research ‘Charlotte Isbey - The Deliberate Dumbing-Down of the World’,

- Better public transport, walking, and cycling.

No, no cars for peasants! They are to be totally phased out by 2010, notwithstanding the fact that cars can run on water. The PR flyer goes about country parks to keep us same as producers / consumers on our battery farms. Country Parks used to be self-sufficient farms before most difficult talks ever embarked on by humanity”.

Copenhagen airport expects 150 extra private jets when the talks peak at the end of next week, a number too far beyond its capability that they will have to stop them from the VIPs before relocating to a regional airports to park, and then return to pick up the passengers up.

Among the personal jets will be Air Force One. President Obama’s £180,000 limousine, known as ‘The Beast’, will arrive on a separate flight with a fleet of deely helicopters, up to 500 security staff, its doctors, two chefs and his personal Blackberry handler.

No bicycles or pervert airport groping there then!

What’s this “Green’em’sil” all about?

Simple, the elites are killing us off and sterilising us by any and every means possible, blaming us for the crime of existing. It’s called population reduction, and you are the one being murdered. It’s called Local Agenda 21 formerly known as the Communist Manifesto – no private property, no private transport, no sovereignty, no family, no religion and especially no naturally indigenous agrarian males.

What’s the British Green Party doing about the weapons of our environment, paedophilia at the highest levels of government, the judiciary, social services and the police, groping transport systems that look more like naked British Nazi SA trucks, Pavlovian gawking machines, CCTVs, and ‘avodropping lamp-posts to modify human behaviour’, and normality? What’s the British Green Party doing about the harvesting of our children for paedophile rings, drug tests and body part sale, corporate self? What’s the British Green Party doing about traffic, Neo-Paedophilia, Neo-Malthusianism, the handling over of our farming, fisheries, forests, industry and raw materials by trade to the EU, which has its origins in Nazi Germany? Then there is government-media-complex stitching up land use, divide-and-rule, NLP’s police, the charity industry, Common Purpose infiltration, the sterility-fertility industry, gender modification, basketanism, austerity (poverty) creation, the peak oil blatant lie. What’s the British Green Party doing about superheated food poisoning, tap water poisoning, chemtrailing air raids, electro-poisoning, Laura Hockley’s Academy Schools of paedophilia and of course the Global Church of Climatology?

The elites have written their own 10 murderous commandments in tables of stone as the Georgia

Green Party’s priorities are:

- Putting the environment at the heart of everything.
- I would prefer PEOPLE to be at the heart of everything.
- Standing up against overdevelopment and the brainwashing; more Park and Ride services, future plug in centres for your electric car, which won’t let you go very far, if you’re allowed one, that is.

Let’s Think Globally

Who benefits?

Let’s move on soldiers, to the guru-generals of the Earth Army at the Copenhagen Conference on Climate Change December 7th 2009. The Independent newspaper was there reporting.

“...the talks begin in earnest today, with a carbon footprint big enough to squash a small Pacific island. By boat, bus, plane and train that mainly by plane, 20,000 delegates, campaigners and journalists are arriving in Copenhagen in advance of the Guidelines:

“Maintain (sustainability) humanity under 500,000,000 in perpetual balance with nature”.

The population is now at just under 7 billion. Work out what chance you have of surviving these green psychopaths.

As the late George Carlin said, “It’s a big club and you want to be in it.”

A Zero Carbon Economy = A Zero Economy = Zero People?

It’s called Eugenics.

Ferment a stronger Ireland

The objective of the Sovereign Independent is to provide critical news, information and education that mainstream media, for the most part, avoid or refrains from regarding as news, because it is heading up with the increasing loss of sovereignty and independence of its individual nations.

As the world is moving toward an Orwellian New World Order at an ever accelerating pace, more and more people are becoming aware that most of the mainstream media are leading to the masses. We have spearheaded a campaign to distributed printed media to the world-wide who only offer whole truth. We hope we can inspire many others to do the same.

We are an non-partisan newspaper. All the information printed is well researched and verified. This Sovereign Independent is printed in Ireland, produced by volunteers and funded by donations. We are not sponsored by any organisation or political party. We are neither left nor right, and we are the middle ground.

Please visit and bookmark www.sovereignindependent.com for daily updated Truth News. Also please visit our e-shop. You will find a link to the e-shop on our website.

Please visit our events at www.sovereignindependent.com for these conferences and also events and conferences recorded by a video of John Morgan and his driver.

The Sovereign Independent also host a regular radio show every Monday evening 7-8pm GMT. To listen to this internet radio show visit our website.
